The Meaning Of the U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Millions of Americans have come to know and admire Henry Cabot Lodge from watching him on television screens in his skillfully handled clashes with the Russians in United Nations debates.

This week we celebrate the founding of the U.N. I asked Ambassador Lodge to put down his valuation of this world organization of 81 nations. His reply was this:

"That is hard to put into one sentence. The United Nations is not a cure-all for the world's ills but a practical device.

"It is, in the words of the charter, 'a center for harmonizing the actions of nations' in support of certain aims—notably peace and a better life. It is also the world's most potent loudspeaker for mobilizing public opinion against injustice—which can only be done very imperfectly because the world is still a long way from having a single standard of right and wrong.

"How much the United Nations can actually accomplish depends on whether the member states will step up and support the charter when the going gets rough. The record is far from perfect but there have been important achievements in the past 13 years."

Practical Device

The ambassador described it well. The U.N. is a practical device. Its future does depend upon how well member states step up and support the charter.

In one of the last speeches Woodrow Wilson made he said that peace depended upon force. He went on to say that force properly applied allowed moral seeds to take root. And that, too, was right.

Here in the lounge one can talk with delegates from many nations. There is a wish for a U.N. police force, but a fear of it.

There is a growing belief that a permanent force, living in barracks and on call to any troubled spot, would be an error. It might have periods in which to do nothing. It might be made up of contingents from countries between which rivalries might arise. Then, too, all the crises which require troops are different. The Gaza Strip was different from Suez. Korea was still another and greater thing.

Dag Hammarskjöld is moving slowly toward obtaining from members an agreement in principle. He would have each nation agree to supply a certain number of troops upon call. This would give flexibility of choice. It would avoid a permanent force.

Enduring Concept

But, if we do not have a war this great concept of the United Nations will endure. The great danger which might lie ahead is the development of too many "blobs" and the placing of emphasis on using the U.N. for objectives contrary to the charter.

An Indonesian sat and talked of Asia. He was concerned, as are many here, by the fact military governments have taken over in Pakistan, Thailand and Burma. His own country, Indonesia, has a semimilitary government.

"We have been discussing government," he said. "Many of us, with new free governments, have about decided that the party system might not be best for us. It is too much of a step from an absolute monarchy or colonial rule to a party-cabinet system. Perhaps for us there must be some interim step. That many governments cannot stand, because they were not economically strong or trained in the arts of self government, is obvious.

Much of the talk here, of course, is about Quemoy. There now is the belief that the theory the Chinese resumed fire merely to coincide with Mr. Dulles' visit to Formosa was oversimplified. There is a theory the Peiping government wants to force evacuation of the civilian population. This would be a propaganda triumph and would reduce it to a purely military operation. It is felt, too, that the use of the U.S. Sidewinder air-to-air missile, which shot down several Russian MIGs, has caused the Communists to shift their policy to one of attrition and not of invasion.

But no one knows. Meanwhile, time and history move on like great rivers in the lives of mankind.

Rights Panel Sets Hearing In Alabama

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The Civil Rights Commission will hold public hearings in Montgomery, Ala., beginning Dec. 8 in a move to compel disclosure of Alabama voting records.

Officials of Macon County, Ala., refused this week to give registration documents to commission investigators. They acted on the advice of John Patterson, Alabama attorney general and Democratic nominee for governor.

The six-member rights commission voted unanimously today to go to Alabama and investigate charges of discrimination against Negro voters. The hearings will be the first held since the commission was created a year ago by the Civil Rights Act of 1957.

SUBPOENA POWERS

The commission has subpoena powers under the act. While no statement was made on the subject Thursday, all indications were that the Macon County voting records would be subpoenaed.

Dr. John A. Hannah, commission chairman, said the position of Alabama officials was not the only reason for the hearing. He said the basic ground for going to the area was to investigate complaints about voting discrimination for reasons of race.

Commission investigators have been studying such charges in Alabama, Mississippi and Florida. Dr. Hannah indicated that they had met no resistance in the other two states like that in Alabama, but he would not rule out the possibility of hearings there, too.

SWORN COMPLAINT

The commission also disclosed it has authorized a voting investigation in a Northern state. The state was not identified.

In this case, Dr. Hannah said, the commission has received a sworn complaint about denials of the right to vote on grounds of race.

Integration Ordered in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Federal District Judge J. Skelly Wright handed down a final decree Thursday ordering desegregation of the Orleans Parish (New Orleans) public schools as soon as arrangements can be made.

The court's final order enjoined the school board from permitting segregation of the races any further. It ordered arrangements for admission of children on a racially non-discriminatory basis with all deliberate speed.

After Thursday's final decision school board attorney Gerard Rault said it would be appealed. Rault pointed out that the order sets no definite date for the schools to be integrated.

Rault said the school board would appeal on the basis of Judge Wright's recent decision declaring unconstitutional Act 319 of the 1956 Louisiana Legislature.

The act places classifying schools as white or Negro in the hands of a legislative committee.

Won't Let Chiang Attack China Reds, Dulles Says

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said Thursday the United States is "not going to attack or tolerate attacks against the Chinese Communists" in the Formosa Strait.

Dulles' statement, made in a television interview filmed for use in Great Britain, was made public here while the secretary was flying home from talks at Taipei, Formosa, with Chiang Kai-shek.

He was bringing with him a reported promise from the President of Nationalist China to consider reducing Nationalist force on the Quemoy-Matsu islands near the Chinese Communist mainland.

Dulles returned from Formosa early Friday and declared his conferences with President Chiang Kai-shek of Nationalist China had been "eminently satisfactory."

Dulles told reporters at nearby Andrew Air Force Base that he would report to President Eisenhower later Friday.

Developments at Taipei and Washington indicated the United States and Nationalist China were trying to bring the pressure of world public opinion to bear on the Red Chinese to institute a long-term cease-fire.

They also appeared to be trying to reassure this country's European allies and neutralist nations that they have no aggressive plans in the Formosa area.

Mine Roof Collapses, Kills 2, Traps Third

SHIPPINGPORT, Pa. (AP)—A section of roof in an old coal mine just recently reopened caved in Thursday, killing two miners and trapping a third. Rescue workers said there was little hope that the third man survived.

Rescue workers recovered the bodies of Jack Call, 18, son of John Call, operator of the mine, and Dale Haskill, 23, of Monaca Heights, Pa., about four hours after the fall.

Still trapped was Haskill's brother, Elwood, of near Shippingport.

$3 Million Bond Issue Voted, 2-1

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Fulton County citizens, despite their apparent tax consciousness, Thursday voted approval of a $3,325,000 county school bond issue by a margin of about 2½ to 1, complete but unofficial returns showed.

Returns compiled by the school staff from the 27 precincts in the county school district showed 1,645 for and 661 against the issue.

1957 VOTING

The light turnout, school officials pointed out, was about equal to that of the 1957 referendum when a total of 2,272 persons voted on a $3 million bond issue.

Five precincts voted against the bond issue Thursday, Palmetto, Goodes, Newtown, Double Branch and Big Creek.

School officials in presenting their cause, had pointed out that the issue would require a one-mill increase in the county school bond tax.

3 NEW SCHOOLS

Approval of the bonds will allow the system to construct three new elementary schools, one new high school, additions to eight elementary schools and to four high schools.

Official tabulation of the vote will be made by the county board of education at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Cupboard Found 'Bare' By Vandiver

Constitution State News Service

ATHENS—Governor nominate Vandiver declared Thursday that the spending policies of the Griffin administration have almost broken the state government.

He accused Gov. Griffin indirectly of laying down a "smoke screen" in an effort "to obscure the fact that the cupboard is bare."

In a speech to the Junior Bankers Conference at the University of Georgia, Vandiver said that the Griffin administration has depleted the treasury surplus to the lowest point it has been in 10 years.

Since July 1, 1957, Vandiver said the surplus has been reduced from $35 million to about $4.5 million at present. He said "published reports of additional commitments already made indicate that the small remaining surplus will be wiped out by the end of the present fiscal year."

Rock Upheaval Traps 140 Deep in Coal Mine Filling Up With Gases

Ventilation System Out; Score Saved

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (AP)—An upheaval of rock deep underground shattered part of No. 2 Cumberland mine here Thursday night. Four hours later, at midnight, 140 miners were unaccounted for. More than a score had reached the surface, two of them injured. One fatality had been reported.

One man who escaped said the rock shift knocked out the mine ventilation system. He said there was gas at the 3,400-foot level—almost two miles closer to the mine exit than the missing men were.

Men, women and children—many weeping—huddled at the pithead awaiting word from a mine rescue team on the fate of the 140 below.

The upheaval occurred at 6:05 p.m. (Atlanta time).

RESCUERS TOIL

A 20-man rescue team, headed by George Calder, manager of Cumberland Railway and Coal Co., entered the shaft 55 minutes later. At midnight they had not returned to the surface.

Bert MacArthur, who escaped and reported that a rockfall knocked out the ventilation, said: "The situation's terrible."

One unidentified miner was taken to a hospital. A second, Percy MacDonald, was helped from the mine by his two sons. He was in a state of shock.

"Only about 20 have been brought out and the rest are still missing," an official said.

HOUSES TREMBLE

The big bump came at the No. 2 mine of the Cumberland Railway and Coal Co., a subsidiary of the Dominion Steel and Coal Co. The climax of a series of upheavals there this year, it was felt throughout the town. Houses trembled and dishes shook on their shelves.

Such movements ordinarily mean a sudden shift in the floor, walls or passages. The No. 2 mine adjoins a closed colliery where 39 men died in an explosion in November 1956.

Miners Joe MacMannan and Charles Alderson walked to the surface about an hour after the

The thermometer is expected to rise to highs each day of 78 degrees after a low of 53 Friday morning and 54 Saturday morning. Extremes here Thursday were 56 and 78.

After evacuating the building, V. V. Lavroff, the college's security officer and comptroller, posted guards at entrances while detectives scoured the premises looking for a bomb. Evening classes were resumed about one hour and

Federal Reserve Raises Discount Rate in 5 Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board Thursday authorized five reserve banks to raise their discount rate to 2½ per cent Friday. Their rate is now 2 per cent.

The banks are those in Philadelphia, Richmond, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas.

The other seven reserve banks are expected to follow suit soon.

This is the second discount rate increase in a little more than two months. It was boosted in mid-August from 1½ to 2 per cent.

NO MORE HULA-HOOPING FOR HER

Mrs. Ann Mask in Traction; Nurse Is Jeanette Roach

'NOT WORTH IT'

Hula Hooping Lands Woman in Hospital

By CHARLES MOORE

Mrs. Ann Mask's advice to those wanting to learn to hula-hoop: "Don't do it!"

The 27-year-old Fayetteville housewife believes she has had ample time to give the matter thought. The hula hooper has been hospitalized since Saturday with a back injury.

A week earlier, she reported, "I was having myself a time, learning to hula-hoop." Now she's in traction with eight-pound weights on her legs for an hour, every other hour, 24 hours a day.

"And it wasn't worth it."

Mrs. Mask said her doctor said she has a strained back and may be a slipped intervertebrae disc. If the backbone disc has slipped, she may have to undergo an operation to correct it.

"At first I was just sore. I thought that I just needed more exercise. Then it got so that I couldn't even walk." That's when she reported in at Crawford Long Hospital.

Why did she try to learn to twirl the hoop?

"Everybody else was learning how and I wanted to, too."

Mrs. Mask feels her advice applies to children also. "They can turn the wrong way like I did, too," she said.

Nasser Gets Soviet Cash For Aswan

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government announced Thursday night a 400-million-ruble loan to the United Arab Republic to build the huge Aswan Dam project on the Nile.

The announcement was made by Nikita Khrushchev, at a Kremlin reception for visiting Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, a vice president in the Nasser regime.

Amer replied that the people of the U.A.R. would be glad to learn of the Soviet aid.

Khrushchev said the loan would be used for deliveries of Soviet machinery, equipment and other materials the U.A.R. lacks and for Soviet technicians and specialists. He said it would amount to up to 400 million rubles—equivalent of 100 million dollars at the official exchange rate applicable in such foreign aid transactions. No terms of interest were reported.

The ambitious Aswan high dam project for irrigation and electric power development figured disastrously for the West in a series of 1956 Mideast crises.

Cost of Living Dips .2 Pct. Here

The cost of living in Atlanta fell off two-tenths of 1 per cent between June and September—more than at any time since the first quarter of 1955.

However, the index's September level was 2 per cent above a year ago.

Sparkling the slight third-quarter decline in Atlanta were cheaper food, housing and personal care.

Nationwide, the consumer price index remained unchanged between June and September, the Labor Department reported in Washington. The index remained at 123.7 per cent of average 1947-49 prices.

About 900,000 railroad workers will receive a one-cent hourly pay increase because of the rise of the price index over the past six

IKE TRIES OUT A CAMPAIGN SALUTE ON THE HOMEFOLKS
President, Pleased With Speaking Trip, Receives Gala Welcome at Capital

Truman Lays 'Hate' Violence To Weak Leadership by Ike

BOSTON (AP)—Harry S. Truman said Thursday night that President Eisenhower sidestepped his "moral responsibility" to back the Supreme Court's school integration decision and permitted a wave of violence by "crackpots and extremists."

The former President cut loose at his Republican successor in the White House for what he described as failure to exert "the proper leadership" at the "proper time" in the last four years.

"The President has never told the nation that he believed the Supreme Court's decision was morally right," Truman said in an address prepared for delivery at a Democratic fund-raising dinner.

"He has carefully avoided stating his views on the subject."

"For three years, the administration stood aside, while the opposition in some parts of the country gathered its strength. Only when there was outright defiance of the courts by a sovereign state did the President move into action. That was too late. The opposition to law had solidified and the poison of hate had already spread."

INTEGRATION ISSUE

The 74-year-old Democratic war-horse wound up his national campaigning for party nominees for Senate and House with a firm declaration of his own "unequivocal" position that the Supreme Court decision is not only the law but that "it is morally right."

Truman spoke out in the face of bitter difference within his own party and the threat of a Democratic revolt in some Southern states over the issue which has closed some Little Rock, Ark., and other Southern schools.

He said it was not enough for Eisenhower to "deplore" the "83 instances of bombings of schools, homes and religious institutions traceable to the desegregation conflict."

"MORAL RESPONSIBILITY"

The President, Truman added, "has a moral responsibility in this matter" and "must exercise active, affirmative leadership."

Truman said Eisenhower exercised that kind of leadership and "won his fight" when he got a four-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements program through education of the public and effective persuasion of Congress.

"If he had fought as hard for civil rights," Truman added, "we would have a lot less trouble today."

The occasion for the address was a testimonial dinner for 35-year-old Edward McCormack, a nephew of Rep. John McCormack (D-Mass.), House majority leader. The young McCormack, now serving as interim state attorney general, is a candidate for election to that post.

Pepped Up GOP Hails 'New' Ike

Weeks, Alcorn Turn Optimistic

By The Associated Press
Republicans saluted President Eisenhower Thursday as an inspiring leader with new-found political force.

There was oratory aplenty as time began running out for the Nov. 4 elections that will decide, among other things, whether the voters will keep control of Congress in Democratic hands or give it to the Republicans.

PEPPED-UP LEADER

One pepped-up Republican leader, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, predicted in a campaign speech at Charleston for West Virginia GOP candidates:

"President Eisenhower's hand will be strengthened in his work for prosperity and peace by the election of Republicans."

Another, GOP Chairman Meade Alcorn, said at Washington that Eisenhower's just-concluded swing to the West Coast has "fired up the party" as he has never seen it fired up before.

In New York Vice President Nixon mounted new attacks on left-wing "radicals" Thursday night as he predicted Republicans will win the New York governor and Senate races.

Nixon said Thursday night Nelson Rockefeller offers the "dynamic leadership" to keep New York in the forefront in competition with California and other states.

In an informal 30-minute state telecast, Nixon roundly endorsed the gubernatorial candidacy of the man whose election probably will make him the vice president's chief rival for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination. Nixon, whose campaigning in New York obviously was looked upon by Rockefeller as a liability rather than an asset, dramatically endorsed the man who wouldn't come to dinner with him at the Theodore Roosevelt anniversary celebration in suburban Garden City.

Rockefeller, who has deprecated some of Nixon's free-swinging attacks on the Democrats, spoke, instead, at a dinner in Manhattan.

Shortly before Nixon's speech, Rockefeller in an apparent change of plans said he might meet with the vice president Friday morning.

President Eisenhower got a cheering reception from Republican officials and others as he flew back to Washington from his five-day campaign tour of unprecedented-for him—criticism of the Democrats.

FOUND NO APATHY

While Alcorn and other GOP bigwigs buzzed around with congratulations, Eisenhower gave them a summary of his trip:

"I didn't run into any pessimism or apathy."

Alcorn said later that he and Eisenhower had discussed the possibility of another campaign trip, and that plans may be announced early next week.

The Democrats' chairman, Paul Butler, said in a speech prepared for a Democratic rally at Bethesda, Md., that Eisenhower's speeches had become "unpleasant and pitiful... capitulation to the ugly tactics of Mr. Nixon."

New Industries Wary? A Bit, Arkansans Say

By CLAUDE SITTON

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Government and business leaders here give varying estimates of the extent to which the desegregation controversy has damaged this area's economy.

Virtually all of those interviewed conceded that the strife arising from the admission of nine Negroes to Central High School in September, 1957, had created an adverse business climate.

These leaders emphasized, however, that economic factors favored continued industrial growth in Little Rock and Arkansas and they contended that no lasting harm had resulted.

EXPANSION DECLINES

Statistics offer little help in assessing the damage, although they show a definite decline in the rate of expansion. This is because the period of troubles here for which business indices are available roughly coincided with a nationwide economic slump.

However, business executives and officials of the various agencies and organizations concerned with development cited the following as evidence of the harmful effects of the integration crisis:

1. Letters from companies interested in plant sites saying that Arkansas had been crossed off their list.
2. Cancellation of one new plant because of opposition from families of technical employees to moving here.
3. Difficulty encountered in obtaining engineers from outside the state to staff a research facility.
4. Obstacles faced by one manufacturer in marketing a product labeled with the state's name.

FAUBUS OPTIMISTIC

But inquiries on plant sites from outside companies have not fallen off significantly, according to the City and State Chamber of Commerce and the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus, when asked if he thought integration troubles had curtailed the growth of industry, replied:

"There's been no definite indication of it."

A development commission report submitted to him showed that 8,527 new jobs in manufacturing were created in the year ended last July 1 by 91 new or expanding industries.

The figure represented a drop of 18 per cent from the previous year. The commission said it felt the state still had fared better in the recession than many other parts of the nation.

Frank W. Cantrell, manager of the State Chamber of Commerce, said there was no doubt that bad publicity over the school situation had slowed down the industrial program—to what degree he could not say.

These Amendments Invite More Taxes

Since most candidates in the general election on Nov. 4 are unopposed, Georgia voters primarily will be concerned with a long list of constitutional amendments. Most of them are local in application but quite a few have statewide application and will affect, in time, the pocketbooks of all citizens should they be approved.

Two such amendments, listed as Nos. 12 and 15 on the ballot, would authorize the state to levy taxes to underwrite pension plans for peace officers and for ordinaries respectively in all counties in the state.

Wording of the two amendments is similar. They would "authorize the levying of taxes for the purpose of paying retirement benefits, costs of administration and other benefits." If approved, the next move of the peace officers and ordinaries would be to pressure the General Assembly to levy such taxes to provide pensions, costs of administration of same and "other benefits."

There is just one question to be asked voters on these amendments. Do they want to assume the burden of providing pensions for every official in every county and municipality in the state? Should not these local officials, many of whom draw heavy remuneration under the fee system, provide their own pension funds? Do the taxpayers want to set up retirement funds for every sheriff, deputy sheriff, justice of the peace and ordinary in Georgia as another step toward covering every local government employee?

This is another instance in which the State of Georgia is being asked to assume a function which primarily is a local one. At a time when taxpayers cannot find funds to pay the taxes they already must meet, when the State Treasury is facing bankruptcy, adding to their burden by underwriting pension plans for local county and perhaps city officials would be unjust and unwise.

If these amendments are approved, no one can foresee just how far the state would be asked to go in underwriting these pension plans. Why are peace officers, for instance, in any special class? Why should not the state set up plans and underwrite the bill for every employee of state, county and local governments?

Georgians would do well to defeat these two amendments, Nos. 12 and 15. If local taxpayers want to set up pension plans for local officers, let them do so. But let all Georgia taxpayers note that if these amendments are passed, they will be supporting retirement funds for elected officials in every county of the state at a cost which no one today can estimate.

Dulles Zooms Around Like Satellite in Orbit

It has been many moons since John Foster Dulles took office, and a lot of water has passed over the brinks, but of one thing you can be assured: Our secretary of state is by a good many miles the biggest gadabout ever to hold public office in the history of this country.

When Dulles' plane touched down on Formosa this week, his air miles traveled totaled 522,226, more than the distance to the moon and back.

The next rocket to the moon will have to hurry some to keep up with Dulles.

And considering the speed at which Dulles has been orbiting about the earth, when and if a rocket reaches the moon, it likely will find scrawled in lunar dust: "Dulles Was Here."

Vandiver Makes Sense On Muddled Finances

Gov.-Nominate Ernest Vandiver made an honest, sensible speech last night before the Junior Bankers Conference in Athens. Once again he faced facts about state finances, deplored a situation which is leading the state toward insolvency and outlined broad plans to cope with fiscal irresponsibility in state government.

Mr. Vandiver will find a hearty response to his statement: "In my administration whenever and wherever the public interest and private interest conflict, the public interest will prevail without exception." To those who have been appalled by the steady onslaught of cronyism in government, these are pleasant sounding words indeed.

The governor-nominate exploded the defense of spending as "non-recurring" items. "Any banker and any businessman," said Mr. Vandiver, "knows that when money is spent for capital improvements the expense has only just begun."

In the last three years, Mr. Vandiver reminds us, 200 million dollars in new taxes have been collected from Georgians and 150 million dollars in new debts have been added. Yet today the state is spending the last remnants of its meager surplus.

Under the present system of fiscal control, the governor-nominate said, "... with the governor exercising virtually unlimited control over the purse to the exclusion of the Legislature" we have a situation akin to robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Reaffirming platform pledges, Mr. Vandiver again calls for a return of the Legislature's power over state spending and an end to practices leading the state to bankruptcy and higher taxes.

Georgians do not mind paying taxes to support essential and worthwhile programs. They do mind having their funds spent recklessly and without regard to their source.

Did T. V. Williams Find Enough Time at Last?

After nearly four years in office, Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams finally marched himself into the Merit System quarters to check personally on how his employees stood in regard to compliance with regulations.

Making such an inspection conceivably was a bitter pill for the commissioner to swallow, accustomed as he was to defying the rules pretty much at will.

Not too many months ago the arrogant Mr. Williams considered himself too busy to bother with whatever was necessary to put his house in order.

But with today's deadline set by the Fulton County Grand Jury staring him in the face, Mr. Williams of late has managed somehow to find time to make some changes.

The latest of these came yesterday when he dismissed 10 employees and adjusted the salaries of 36 others.

In view of his long history of non-compliance with Merit System requirements, however, the grand jury today would do well to scrutinize carefully the results of the commissioner's burst of belated activity.

Did he do a thorough job of housecleaning or merely give it a lick and a promise?

In any event, the very fact that it took prodding by the grand jury for Mr. Williams to accomplish whatever he may have done in getting his department in line is a reflection upon both himself and the caliber of state government.

And until the grand jury completes its study of the matter, the question still remains: Has he at last done what he was supposed to have been doing all along?

United Nations Serves As Instrument of Peace

An uneasy world today will watch the United Nations light the 13th candle in its birthday cake.

In its glow is reflected mankind's greatest hope for peace.

Amid turbulence, threats and violence the U.N. has clung to its principles. Although criticized on occasions for moving too slowly and not vigorously enough, the fact that the world has not been engulfed in a shooting war is a tribute to its effectiveness.

It stands as a monument to the vision and energy of the leaders who established it 13 years ago for the purpose of settling disputes with words spoken in the greatest forum on earth instead of with bullets and bombs that could destroy civilization as we now know it.

Its success also further demonstrates the wisdom of Woodrow Wilson in pleading for the United States to join the League of Nations, a plea whose denial was a mistake for which we have paid dearly.

All the peoples of the world have reason to be thankful that the "raggedy" which rendered the League impotent was not repeated when the groundwork was being laid for formation of the U.N.

May it continue to serve its purpose as an instrument of peace.

We Must Pay Price For Local Control

The New York State commissioner of education speaking recently to a citizens committee on schools pointed up a principle that is fundamental everywhere.

Said the New York official, Dr. James E. Allen Jr., "Local control has been the source of much vigor and strength of our educational system and it must be preserved."

With that, we all agree. But wait, there is a price.

Dr. Allen hadn't finished. He said further, "Emphasis on education as a national concern will threaten local control only if local performance is poor."

It is said the best answer to criticism is a good performance.

The best way to keep education under local control is a good performance that leads to high quality. Good performance starts with adequate finances.

Mariettan Urges Americans To Read And To Reason Out Their Destinies

Smyrna — We, the people of the South, have to make a great decision in order to fulfill our obligation to future generations.

The majority of us have not used our blessings to read and to reason out our destiny.

Through the miracles of science and religion the world has become an island within the universe.

We can sound off and be heard anywhere in the world within seconds.

We can no longer hide our shame and deceit from the rest of the world.

We cannot call other people barbarians without them hearing us and resenting it.

We cannot tell the rest of the world that we have the only government blessed by God.

We cannot develop a fair foreign policy as long as we have social problems such as segregation. G. E. STANTON.

Why Deny Children Chance To Share?

Atlanta — As the mother of three children who have been looking forward to Trick or Treat for UNICEF, and as the leader of a troop of Girl Scouts, many of whom were planning to help UNICEF again this year, I'd like to ask the members of the Funds Appeal Board, who denied the request this year, and the editorial writer who agreed with them in Monday's Constitution, some questions for which I have no answers.

How am I to explain to the children that it is all right to ask for treats as long as they are "treats for ME but not for help for others?"

Does brotherly love, the need for which has been so dramatically demonstrated in Atlanta, apply only to adults?

Is Atlanta not able to handle any possible "dangers during the rambunctious Halloween season," when 8,500 other communities in the United States can?

Why not just do away with "Trick or Treat" entirely? Halloween, too? Wouldn't it make it easier on everybody?

There has been no organized effort to use children to "conduct a Halloween solicitation of contributions." There has been an effort to provide children who wanted it an opportunity to deny themselves something to help others, an opportunity children very seldom have these days.

I keep thinking of the children who need milk, at one cent for five glasses, TB vaccine, at one cent per immunization, a nickel's worth of penicillin to cure yaws. Somehow the gumdrops will be stickier and the cookies soggier this Halloween, and there may really be some ghosts, of love and brotherhood and sharing! MRS. WALTER PASCHALL.

Georgian Predicts Tax 'Adjustment'

Marietta — Our state officials have enacted into law a plan which would automatically cut off state funds to any institution ordered integrated by a federal court. Since the Supreme Court has nullified any plan which would be evasive of its historic May 1954 desegregation ruling, the so-called private school plan cannot be put into effect.

This money which is allocated annually to public education will no longer be needed because there will be no private or public educational system in Georgia if the state is ordered to integrate its schools. This will be one bill that the taxpayers will no longer have to "foot."

Therefore, state taxes would have to be adjusted according to state spending. E. L. D.

Sunday School Class Makes a Resolution

Dacula — Please note the following as adopted at a class meeting, Sept. 16, 1958:

"Be it resolved, the Caravan Class of the Oakhurst Presbyterian Church hereby agrees that fewer members shall not send Christmas cards to each other and that the subsequent savings be contributed jointly to a worthy Christmas charity."

For whatever it is worth, we pass this thought along. It is not original with us; however, we feel it merits any publicity that might bring us more in accord with the true meaning of Christmas.

Marked Paid On the Ledger

Cast your bread upon the waters and it may come back to you. A drifter went to St. James Episcopal Church in Marietta, said he was broke and asked for money enough to wire for more.

Charles Demere, St. James associate rector, gave him the price of a telegram. Before long, the man came back. He had received the money for which he wired. Not only did he pay the loan, but he said, "One day not long ago I was in a church where they took up the collection in wicker baskets with long handles. I took half a dollar from one of those baskets. I've been worrying about that since. Would it clear me if I gave you the 50 cents?"

Mr. Demere allowed it would. So the Episcopalian in my town profited by four bits and the drifter by a clear conscience.

President Adopts 'Get Tough' Policy

WASHINGTON—One of the most spirited of the contests going on in the climax of the congressional campaign is a series of brick battles between Dwight D. Eisenhower and Dwight D. Eisenhower. The "tougher" Eisenhower is progressively winning over the amiable Eisenhower—with all encouragement from the Republican professionals.

The President has first deplored and then welcomed foreign policy fighting in the campaign. He first assented to the use in a Republican Manifesto of the cry of "socialism" against the Democrats. And though he backlashed momentarily to repudiate that cry, he has now gone much farther to change the Democratic Party with being dominated by "political radicals."

This accusation, made recently by the President in a belated effort to help the Republicans in California, was incomparably the harshest partisan blow he ever delivered.

The pros at the GOP National Committee did not prepare, though they happily welcomed, this presidential epithet against a party that on some critical issues has helped him in Congress more than his own. It was written by White House ghosts who are supposed to be "modern" Republicans innocent of the combative partisanship of the "regular" Republicans which the President himself usually deplores.

Indeed, Eisenhower, as recently as Oct. 15, had tut-tutted this kind of language with the chiding observation: "Politicians do love to make things very positive."

The fact that within less than a week he himself was making things even more "positive" is still a source of happy relief to the pros. They knew what was supposed to be in the California speech.

But they had great fears that the operative words "political radicals" would never get uttered by the President when the time came.

Not merely Vice President Richard M. Nixon but also Meade Alcorn, the Republican National chairman, had been anxiously at work since early September to "toughen the President up." Alcorn began going to the White House long ago to say that unless the President went to work in urgent partisanship the rest of the Republicans would be able to stir neither the voters nor the "fat cats"—the campaign cash contributors.

These strong and continuous representations alternately made and lost headway. But Alcorn succeeds began to predominate over Alcorn failures after Sherman Adams, the former presidential assistant, left the White House for good. Adams had held Mr. Alcorn at arms' length from the President.

And there is, ironically, sound information from Republican quarters that neither the President nor the party chairman would have gone so far had Adams, a special Democratic target, remained in the White House.

Garments of Soul Are All-Important

How often we men are questioned by the women in our homes about their appearances. Maybe it is a woman's way of getting the kind of attention every woman needs. We are all ready to leave the house to attend some special function. Our wives get a step ahead of us and, turning gracefully around, ask, "Is my slip showing?"

Care in grooming reveals a certain fastidiousness in our personalities. Sometimes we are more concerned with what we wear and how we wear it than we are in the personalities we take out into public.

When I was younger there was a stock character in motion pictures called the dumb blonde. This character was a perfectly wonderful person to gaze upon, but when she opened her mouth you knew by what she said and how she said it that the weight of her intellect was nothing to boast of.

Everyone likes to look upon well-tailored persons, but of what value is an attractively dressed person if her personality is flat or his manner uncouth? And of what real value is the man who dresses like a Brooks Brothers' model but lacks all of the finer qualities of the soul?

Jesus did not concern himself with wearing apparel but He was everlastingly concerned with the garments of the soul. And true religion is always identifying itself with the health and beauty of our spiritual lives. When our souls are not properly garbed, all kinds of slips destroy our appearances to man and God. The ill-kept soul will be recognized by slips in speech and actions. The ill-clad soul exposes inner weaknesses and sins.

Harry Truman Is Newsmen Favorite

WASHINGTON—It's awfully hard for even a Southern Democrat to feel any personal animosity toward Harry S. Truman. True, the former President seems to be aligned with National Chairman Paul Butler and other Northern liberals in opposition to the Southern viewpoint. And Southerners don't like that.

But Truman has such an engaging personality it's almost impossible to get mad at him. In his outspoken role as an elder statesman, HST is as cocky as he can be. But he also has a warm, human touch that newsmen have always liked.

The boyish Eisenhower grin in photographs and on television charms millions. But in person Truman projects his personality with a great deal more warmth and common touch. A real down-to-earth guy.

He showed those qualities on a return trip to Washington a few days ago. Confident, relaxed, smiling and razor-sharp with his quips, HST seemed to be enjoying himself thoroughly.

Truman exudes the confidence of a man who has occupied the highest office in the land, knows more about it than anyone else, but no longer has the problems or responsibilities that go with the position.

He likes to give little lectures on history, as he did to a Democratic audience here on past presidents. And, of course, his chief targets are the Republicans, whom he gleefully attacks at every opportunity.

So to veteran Washington newsmen, it's like old home week whenever Harry Truman comes back to town and holds a press conference.

When he was asked who was the greatest "real" Republican to occupy the White House, Truman just as quickly grinned and said, "I don't know of any."

As a local politician in Missouri and later as a United States senator, Truman had contacts with newsmen that Dwight Eisenhower, as a soldier, never had. He learned to like reporters and showed it when he was in the White House.

HST was approachable. He knew many of the White House correspondents on a first-name basis and took them with him on his morning walks. When he stepped off a plane on one of his trips, newsmen could walk up and ask him questions. He even played poker with them on occasion.

So to veteran Washington newsmen, it's like old home week whenever Harry Truman comes back to town and holds a press conference.

DeKalb Juvenile Home To Go on Protested Site

The DeKalb County Commission, at an unannounced meeting, Thursday voted to build the county juvenile home on a controversial Lawrenceville road site. Citizens have objected to plans to place it there.

Worker Hurt By Falling Church Wall

A workman was injured Thursday when struck by fragments of a wall that collapsed at the North Atlanta Baptist Church at Hemphill avenue and Tenth street, NW, police said.

John Campbell, 44, of 306 St. Francis St., College Park, was treated at Grady Hospital for severe bruises and abrasions, Patrolman R. L. Rhodes said.

Rhodes said he was told that Campbell was standing on a plank, tearing down the wall. He said the plank slipped, hurling Campbell six feet to the ground and that part of the wall fell, striking him.

Commission Chairman Claude H. Blount said construction on the $125,000 home should begin within two months.

Commissioner Charlie Parker was the only commissioner to vote against building the home on the site, which the county has already bought. He said he was against putting the home where people oppose it.

In other business, commissioner Julian Harris said he believes condemnation may be necessary to obtain some 21 pieces of property needed for sidewalks and widening of N. Druid Hills road.

TOKYO (AP)—Japan inaugurated its nationwide traffic safety campaign in midweek. The first forenoon had more than 30 reported accidents—almost double the daily average.

Navy To Evacuate 55 Americans From Rebel-Infested Cuba Coast

HAVANA (U)—U.S. naval forces in eastern Cuba got orders Thursday night to remove about 55 American women and children from areas infested by Cuban rebel kidnap gangs.

The American Embassy in Havana said the evacuation of dependents of about 25 American nickel plant workers in north-east Cuba would be carried out as quickly as possible.

The men whose women and children are being taken out work at the U.S. government-owned Nicaro nickel plant in the north coastal area of Oriente Province. The plant and personnel have been reported harassed this week by roving rebel bands.

Two American and seven Cuban employees of the Texas Oil Co., who were kidnaped Monday near Santiago, the Oriente capital, were released Thursday.

Lawyer Bound Over Here

Former Atlanta attorney W. George Thomas Thursday was bound over to the Fulton County Grand Jury on a burglary charge, police said.

Thomas, 51, who now lives in Milledgeville, was placed under a $1,000 bond on a charge that he broke into the home of Mrs. Grace Norton of 41 25th St., NW, on Tuesday night.

Thomas had been released from county jail Oct. 15 and allowed to sign his own bond on a peace warrant Mrs. Norton had taken out against him to keep him away from her.

She swore out a new peace warrant Wednesday and it will be heard at 11 a.m. Friday before Judge Paul S. Etheridge of Fulton Civil Court.

Psychiatry Prof To Speak Here

Dr. Bernard Holland, chairman of the department of psychiatry, Emory University School of Medicine, will speak at a noon luncheon Saturday at the annual convention of the Georgia Mental Health Assn. at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel.

METER CHEATER

Boy, 16, Is Parked In Court

A 16-year-old youth who thought he had solved his downtown parking problem Thursday was arrested and turned over to juvenile problems.

Policewoman Emily Thacker and detective J. L. Carney said the youth was observed jamming a parking meter on Ellis street, NE, by shoving a penny wrapped in cellophane into the coin slot.

He admitted that he usually parked for a penny, Mrs. Thacker and Carney said. They added those who followed could park even more cheaply because his manipulations put the meter out of order.

The car which the youth had parked for a penny was impounded.

(The names of accused persons under 17 years of age are withheld in accordance with the Georgia Juvenile Court law.)

Short Changer a Quick-Change Artist, Too

A youthful short change artist Thursday forgot her lines, but she thought quickly and came out $10 ahead anyway.

Patrolmen P. B. Greene and G. D. Shorall said they were told it happened this way.

The young woman walked into a Peachtree street shoe shop and ordered a 25-cent box of shoe polish. She gave a $20 bill in payment. The clerk gave her back $10, $5 and four $1 bills.

She proffered the $5 and the $1's in exchange for a $10.

Clerk Richard Bedor had faced that one before. He said he'd be glad to make the exchange—provided she put another $1 with the money she held in her hand.

Visibly flustered at the unexpected turn of events, she snatched the $10 bill from Bedor's hand and fled from the store before anyone could stop her.

Pizzas, Pals and Prices Breaking Up the Liberaces

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Liberace family—Lee, George and Mom—are broken up over frozen pizzas, the smiling pianist's pals and too much real estate.

Mrs. Frances Liberace says she refused to watch Lee's television show since he parted a year ago with brother George. She adds:

"His home in Palm Springs is a night club. He's surrounded by hillbillies and freeloaders. One of these days, Lee will wind up broke—and these characters won't even buy him a sandwich if he's starving."

Mrs. Liberace, an independent soul, lives alone in Lee's lavish Sherman Oaks mansion complete with piano-shaped swimming pool.

"We are simple people from Wisconsin," she told a reporter. "You can only live in one house at a time. Lee has four houses in Palm Springs—and you can only rent houses there for a few months of the year. You call that investment?"

"Give me the old bankbook. That's what counts. When you get hungry, you can't take a hunk of wood out of an empty house and buy bread with it."

The three still speak, but Mrs. Liberace left no doubt that the words are often bitter.

"George is the business head of the two," said Mom. "Lee is too trusting. He can't believe anyone can hurt him, he's too trusting."

In Dallas, where he is playing a night club engagement, violinist George said: "Naturally my mother is upset by the fact that we split. I definitely have no argument with my brother, only his yes men."

His mother said George resented Lee singing a calypso song on a recent TV show. The song followed a question by a woman in the studio audience who asked: "Where's George?"

The song said George is in the frozen pizza business. George says this is a sideline. "I definitely still am in show business."

From Palm Springs, Lee said that George quit him of his own volition. Mama, however, states that "poor George couldn't stand anymore pushing around."

Lee explains his Palm Springs residence thus: "I have to do five shows a week. I live next door to Gordon Robinson (George's successor) and it gives us a quiet place to work."

"I'm sorry about the pizza pie song. By the way, I ate one and it was very good."

Bank Bandits Slug 3, Tie Up 7, Grab $85,000 and Drop $4,000

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Two butter-fingered gunmen held up the Lechmere branch of the Middlesex County National Bank Thursday, pistol-whipped three employees, tied up seven persons and escaped with between $85,000 and $90,000.

In their hasty flight, they dropped one bag of bills at the doorway in bumping into a woman passerby and let another bag slip from their grasp as they ran to their escape car. The dropped loot totaled about $4,000.

The bandits gained entrance before opening time by rushing a bank custodian as he crossed the threshold after sweeping the sidewalk.

They slugged the custodian, James Varley, 60, when they learned the vault was time-set for 9 a.m. Then they waited until employees began to arrive.

Assistant cashier Raymond Spinney, 55, entered. He was struck with a gun butt. Teller George Guida, 23, met the same fate. Both required hospital treatment.

Spinney was forced to open the vault door at 9 o'clock. Then the robbers quickly stuffed all the paper money they could find into paper and cloth bags.

Space Balloon Fizzle Baffles U.S. Scientists

By JACK KING

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Disappointed missile scientists were at a loss Thursday to explain what happened to the Army's latest space venture—an attempt to blast a Beacon balloon satellite into orbit.

"The thing did not work properly and we don't know just yet what caused the trouble," said Dr. Jack Froehlich, one of the chief scientists in the project.

Hope was abandoned that the 12-foot diameter plastic and aluminum foil balloon ever would be spotted.

NO CONCLUSIONS

Froehlich, who heads the satellite program for the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said no conclusions could be made until data available on the flight had been analyzed.

At 42.77 pounds, it was the heaviest payload yet for the workhorse Jupiter-C which thundered skyward at 10:21 p.m. EST Wednesday night.

Froehlich said the balloon rocket's course was tracked for seven or eight minutes, but then only silence followed. The Army lost contact with its huge five-stage missile at an altitude of about 150 miles.

DISMAL MONTH

The third failure in six Army satellite attempts climaxed a dismal month at the cape during which four ballistic weapons exploded and two satellites—Vanguard and Beacon—were unsuccessful.

The only bright spot came on Oct. 11, when the Air Force's majestic Pioneer moon rocket soared to a record-shattering 79,912 miles in space. However, it too plummeted back to earth and burned.

The Beacon sphere was aimed

A Family Is Saved by Counseling

"I want a divorce," Mrs. M. told the Family Service counselor.

She said Mr. M. mismanaged money, wouldn't pay bills, didn't confide in her, didn't seem to care and was so gruff with the children that they were afraid of him.

The counselor suggested that she give this more thought. Mrs. M. agreed. She came often to Family Service. She talked and talked about her complaints. Suddenly, the truth dawned. She was doing all the talking, both at Family Service and at home.

With a little push from the counselor, she went home and told her husband that she was going to do less talking and more home-making. Mr. M. was so pleased that he, in turn, resolved to be a better husband.

A simple problem? Without Family Service, a Community Services organization, it would have wrecked a good family.

This thing happened. It is a documented case history. Give now! Give generously for Community (Chest) Services.

MISSIONARIES IN THE MIDDLE

Free Tooth-Pulling Sets Off Court Fight

SALEM, Ark. (AP)—A state judge Thursday took under advisement a request that missionary trainees be ordered to stop pulling teeth of local residents free.

Chancery Judge P. S. Cunningham of Walnut Ridge indicated he would rule in about two weeks.

After a four-hour hearing before an overflow of courtroom spectators, the judge allotted two weeks for briefs to be filed by attorneys for the state Board of Dental Examiners and Missionary Supporters, Inc.

"This is the darndest case I ever heard of," said Court Clerk L. W. Love. "There must have been almost a thousand people trying to get into the courtroom."

The state board contended the missionary group, operated by W. G. Lewis of Lincoln, Neb., violated state law by allowing prospective missionaries to practice dentistry.

Attorney Kenneth Coffelt of Little Rock, representing the non-sectarian missionary group, declared the state law "doesn't cover this situation at all. It's a matter of religious freedom."

W. G. Lewis of Lincoln, Neb., operator of the group, testified that the missionaries had treated 950 persons and pulled 650 teeth during the month they have been here.

He said the sole purpose of the activities "is to prepare foreign missionaries in practical dentistry for the foreign mission field."

Attorney James A. Robb of Pocatento, representing the state dental board, said the prospective missionaries "are not authorized nor have they been issued a regular license" to practice dentistry.

De Gaulle Offers Meeting to Rebels

Appeals for Face-to-Face Talks To Negotiate Cease-Fire

PARIS (AP)—Premier Charles de Gaulle, in a bid to end the exhausting Algerian war, Thursday appealed to the rebels to come to France for cease-fire negotiations.

He gave his personal guarantee of safe conduct to the representatives of the Algerian National Liberation Front (FLN)—leaders of the four-year-old rebellion.

De Gaulle issued his dramatic end-of-hostilities invitation at his first press conference since becoming premier of a tired, embittered and divided France in June.

At the same time, the 67-year-old general announced that France would soon become a member of the exclusive "atomic club" and consequently could not agree with Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union to a ban on testing nuclear weapons.

He said firmly that he considered such a ban useless and a deception as long as the big powers continued to manufacture and stockpile the death dealing weapons.

Dressed in a dark blue suit and wearing none of his decorations, De Gaulle spoke forcefully, and without benefit of notes.

TRUCE FLAG

Besides calling for face-to-face talks with the rebels, the general asked them to lay down their arms under a flag of truce. Prefacing this with a soldier's praise for his adversaries, he said that those who gave themselves up would be treated honorably.

The World War II hero flatly ruled out, however, the possibility of political conversations with the rebels on Algeria's future.

He said that "the political destiny of Algeria is in Algeria itself" where elections will be held next month.

"When democratic means have been opened, when citizens have the possibility of expressing their will, there is no other valid way," he said. "This way is open in Algeria."

SEEKS SOLUTION

He said the political question was one of evolution.

"As things develop, political solutions will take form," he said. He foresaw that Algeria, while maintaining a close association with France, would eventually form ties with neighboring Tunisia and Morocco.

The peace he envisaged would be followed by a dying away of the bitter hatreds built up over the years.

"I speak of a peace of the brave ones," he said. "What does it mean? Simply this: that those who have opened fire, cease firing, and that they return, without humiliation, to their families and their work."

Since the Algerian fighting began on Nov. 1, 1954, De Gaulle said that 7,200 French soldiers and officers and 77,000 rebels had been killed.

"Alas and alas," he said after making this statement.

In France, he continued, 75 Frenchmen and 1,717 Moslems had been assassinated by terrorists while 1,500 French civilians and more than 10,000 Moslems were killed in Algeria itself.

Body in Trunk Dumped Into Hudson River

NEW YORK (AP)—A man's body was found in a trunk in the Hudson River Thursday.

Witnesses said they had seen a man sitting on the trunk at the end of a pier through most of the drizzly afternoon. About 5 p.m., they told police, the man suddenly got up, shoved the trunk into the water, and walked quickly away.

The body was that of a man about 60 years old. The trunk was quickly recovered because customs service employees at the pier had seen the whole thing and called the police.

Both the trunk victim and the man who pushed the trunk into the river apparently were Puerto Ricans.

The dead man had a thin, pencil-like mustache and was clad in pajama bottoms and a gray robe. The knees had been hacked with a knife, apparently to help jack-knife them against the chest so the body could be fitted into the trunk.

Stuffed in the trunk with the body were a gray sports jacket, gray felt hat, a tan raincoat, and a copy of a book, entitled "The Nature of Prejudice."

The trunk was shoved into the water off 49th Street.

Adm. Rickover Is Given His Third Star by Ike

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—R-Adm. Hyman G. Rickover was promoted Thursday to three-star rank in recognition of his "unique contribution" to development of a nuclear-powered Navy.

The unusual promotion to vice admiral, climaxing the controversial military career of the 58-year-old officer, was announced by the White House. As required by law, the promotion was personally approved by President Eisenhower.

The promotion was a personal triumph for Adm. Rickover, who played the key role in development of the first atomic submarine. In achieving a three-star rank, Rickover not only violated Navy tradition but also overcame deep-seated personal antagonism within the ranks of the Navy.

CONGRESS SPARK

The blunt-spoken and often unorthodox admiral was powerfully assisted in his long personal desire for promotion by congressional support. The administration has been under a clear warning from congressional Democrats that if the administration did not promote him, Congress would do it by special legislation.

The nomination must still be confirmed by the Senate. But there was no question that the nomination would be approved overwhelmingly.

Rickover, who was on one of his frequent flying trips throughout the country, was not informed in advance of his promotion. He learned of it when he arrived at Bettis Laboratory in Pittsburgh about an hour after the White House announcement and he was greeted with "congratulations" by laboratory officials.

CAN CARRY ON

Reached by telephone in Pittsburgh, Rickover said "I am honored and deeply appreciative. With this promotion I will be able to continue to work in development of a nuclear-powered Navy."

"The promotion is really a recognition of what all the men and women in the naval reactors branch and the laboratories working on the naval reactor program have been able to accomplish."

Rickover had made no secret of his personal desire to be promoted to three-star rank so he could continue his work in development of nuclear-powered submarines and surface ships.

As a rear admiral, he would have had to go before a continuation board next year which could keep him in the Navy only on a year-to-year basis until he reached retirement age of 62 in 1962. As vice admiral, he is assured of continuing in the naval reactors branch until 1962.

Overdrinking of Milk Is Linked to Infections

Excessive use of milk and milk products as a contributing factor in certain noninfectious diseases was cited here Thursday by Dr. Frederick J. Stare, head of the department of nutrition at Harvard University.

Dr. Stare spoke on the concluding day of a four-day course in "epidemiology and control of milk-borne disease," sponsored by the U.S. Department of Public Health, Education and Welfare at the Public Health Communicable Disease Center.

He said that although milk continues to be an important food, its importance "may have been overrated by misinterpretation of calcium balance studies and the recommended dietary allowances of the U.S. Food and Nutrition Board."

"Milk is certainly a highly desirable food for infants, children and adolescents," Dr. Stare said, "but too much milk, so that it crowds out other foods out of the diet, is not a desirable nutritional practice. Milk is also a desirable but not an essential constituent of adult diets."

He named two noninfectious conditions — milk-alkali disease and atherosclerosis (hardening and narrowing of the arteries and arterial walls)—that may be aggravated by the over-use of milk products.

Dr. Stare said that milk-alkali disease is now rapidly "going out of style" in the United States. He pointed out that doctors have learned to manage the milk element in the diet.

He added that several years ago, persons undergoing treatment for peptic ulcers involving bland and milk diets, developed high calcium intakes which led to deposits of calcium in the membrane of the eyes and other tissue.

"Recent treatment," he said, "has retained milk in the ulcer patient's diet when improved alkaline powders are used."

In atherosclerosis, Dr. Stare said, "milk is not an etiologic (disease producing) agent as far as I know, but I would think that milk consumption and certainly butter consumption have decreased as a result of recent researches on atherosclerosis."

Dr. Stare noted that milk, since it is a rich source of sodium, is used for the treatment and prevention of edema (swelling or dropsy).

U.S. Asks Return Of 'Spy' Balloons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has called on Russia to return American balloons which the Soviets claim are used for spying on their territory.

In a formal note, the State Department reiterated the high-altitude balloons, equipped with cameras, are used to photograph cloud formations, as part of weather experiments.

Some of the balloons landed on Soviet territory. The Russians recovered them and exhibited them to newsmen as examples of U.S. espionage activities.

2 Texas Brothers Seized in Illinois Are Quizzed in Dr. Henry Slaying

MEMPHIS (AP)—Two Texas brothers, brought back from Illinois, were jailed here Thursday for questioning in the slaying of Dr. Gaynor Henry, 45, a veterinarian.

William Richardson, 28, and Steve, 32, both of Houston, were held without charge pending full investigation. They were arrested in East St. Louis and waived extradition to Tennessee.

Sheriff M. A. Hinds said the Richardsons were held for Memphis officers because their auto bore stolen Tennessee license plates and bloodstained clothing was found in the back of the car.

Henry was clubbed to death in his bedroom at his prosperous small animal clinic Oct. 14. Officers said the Richardsons were in Memphis on that date.

The tubs of coins that amazed firemen found in the smoldering bedroom were counted Thursday. They totaled $2,600.

The search of the boxes of papers and personal effects at the clinic also turned up an 11-year-old will. It named a brother, Guy Henry of Jacksonville, Fla., executor without bond.

Counting insurance, the estate amounts to about $80,000.

Clayton Ordinary Falsified Records, Indictment Says

By ALAN GILLON
Constitution Staff Writer

JONESBORO—An indictment listing eight counts of "falsifying public records" has been brought against Clayton County Ordinary Frank Adamson.

The indictments, issued Wednesday by the Clayton Grand Jury, listed eight instances in which it is charged that false information is contained in the Misdemeanor Book No. 1 of the Court of the Ordinary.

Seven of the eight counts in the indictment charge Adamson with entering false information regarding the disposition of cases under his jurisdiction, where in reality fines had been paid, according to the indictment.

One count charges that a date in the book was changed to an earlier date.

In two other indictments issued Oct. 17, Adamson is accused of embezzlement and malpractice in office.

Official's Bond Seen Liable in Shortage

Part of a Warm Springs Memorial Commission shortage may have to be paid from the bond of an official not directly responsible, the state auditor said Thursday.

The shortage, B. E. Thrasher Jr. reported, amounted to $10,804.89.

Miss Louise Street, who signed a statement acknowledging responsibility for the shortage, was covered by a $10,000 bond, Thrasher added.

J. E. Smenner, who was secretary and treasurer until July 15, had the duty to "see that all funds were deposited to the credit of the commission," the auditor stated. Smenner is bonded at $10,000.

The bonds of both Miss Street and Smenner are honesty bonds "which would not ordinarily cover faithful performance of duty," Thrasher said, but "it is believed that under the laws of Georgia Smenner's bond would cover in addition the faithful performance of duty."

Thrasher said Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook would have to make the final decision about whether Smenner's bond would be liable for the $10,804.89 not covered by Miss Street's bond.

"It is not deemed necessary," he added, "... to cite the various criminal laws dealing with this embezzlement since immediately after the acknowledgement of the shortage by Miss Street she was found dead at her home in Greenville."

Audits of four other agencies were released Thursday and revealed their books to be in order. These were: the Superior Courts of Georgia, the State Housing Authority Board, the Academy for the Blind at Macon and the North Georgia Trade and Vocational School at Clarksville.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Friday, October 24, 1958 9

courts during the fiscal year ended June 30. Total expenditures were $889,443.18, as compared with $777,203.48 the year before.

Sole expense of the Housing Authority Board was a $4,200 payment to Charles E. Tarver of Cordele, coordinator.

Average enrollment at the Academy for the Blind was up from 194 to 202, and per capita operating costs rose from $1.490.36 to $1,562.19. Overall expenses during the year, including new buildings, were $540,641.89.

At the Clarksville school, enrollment fell from 476 to 468, but the number of employees rose from 38 to 108, and the per capita operating cost rose from $967.34 to $1,065.91. Expenses, including new buildings, ran $308,207.05 during the recent fiscal year.

He said their purpose was to acquaint state and local officials with the FBI's "cooperative services" in bombing cases.

"Working with their hands helps our patient in many ways," Administrator Mrs. Mary Smith declared. "It has a tremendous psychological effect."

Men and women at Battle Hill get together with volunteers for occupational therapy sessions every Thursday. Activities vary according to skills. Some of the men go in for leatherwork, with link belts a current specialty. Women may embroider, sew a fine seam on patchwork quilts, crochet, or make the flower corsages they have found highly salable.

Oldsters staged a bazaar in East Point recently, and their handiwork brought in $47.

Money earned through such crafts is divided. A percentage goes to the patient; the rest is ploughed back into the occupational therapy division, which operates on limited funds. Sponsors aim at making the department self-supporting.

"Our patients are proud of their work," Mrs. Smith reported. "They forget their ailments, come out of their shells, enjoy themselves working together."

Delay Sought in College Integration Suit

Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook has filed a motion to delay the Federal Court suit that seeks to integrate Georgia State College of Business Administration.

Cook, on behalf of Noah Langdale Jr., college president, and J. D. Blair, administrative dean, asked that the trial, set for Dec. 1, be rescheduled for the second week of January.

The delay was sought to permit Langdale and Blair to attend the meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Dec. 14 in Louisville, Ky.

The motion contends that it is essential that they attend the meeting to assure that Georgia State's accreditation, previously granted on a transitional basis, be made "secure and permanent."

The suit was filed in federal court in September, 1956 by four Negroes who alleged they were refused admission to the college.

Federal Judge Boyd Sloan will rule on the delay motion at a later date.

"If the plaintiffs are genuinely interested in acquiring further education and training, they should be the last to insist on any course which might conceivably jeopardize the academic standing of the institution which they profess a desire to attend," Cook said.

Georgia's GOPs Have Great Sense of Humor

By WILLIAM M. BATES
Constitution Political Editor

Whatever else may be said about them, Georgia Republicans have a great sense of humor.

Their state chairman, William B. Shartzer, surely had his tongue in his cheek when he invited Georgia Democrats who are unhappy with their party's stand on civil rights to join the GOP.

The Republican Party, Shartzer said, offers Southern Democrats a platform they "can proudly stand on" and an opportunity to have their voices "heard and respected" at the national level.

With true Southern Republican hospitality, Shartzer even invited the unhappy Democrats to have dinner with their GOP neighbors—at a fund-raising affair in Atlanta on Dec. 13.

If Mr. Shartzer had based his invitation to the Democrats on anything other than civil rights, it is just possible that he might have gotten some takers. But to hold up the Republican Party as the great white hope of Southern segregationists is a little too laughable to be taken seriously.

THE PLATFORM

That GOP platform on which Shartzer says Southern Democrats can "proudly stand upon" includes the following passage:

"The Republican Party accepts the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court that racial discrimination in publicly supported schools must be progressively eliminated. We concur in the conclusion of the Supreme Court that its decision directing school desegregation should be accomplished with 'all deliberate speed' locally through Federal District Courts."

The actions and words of Republican spokesmen and leaders in the past few years make Shartzer's invitation to dissident Georgia Democrats even funnier.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the greatest Republican of them all, has referred to the author of the desegregation decision as a "great Republican Chief Justice."

Nixon's own campaign speeches in the 1956 presidential election won't make Georgia Democrats too eager to accept Shartzer's invitation.

Speaking to an all-Negro audience in southside Chicago on Oct. 25, 1956, Nixon said:

"As long as the Democrats who presently are chairmen of key committees in the House and Senate hold their position, civil rights legislation will never see the light of day. Only by electing a Republican House and Senate and putting the committee chairmanships in the hands of men who support President Eisenhower's position will Americans be able to make the progress that all of us want toward the goal of equality of opportunity."

RIGHTS BILL

Even though Nixon didn't get a Republican House and Senate in the 1956 election, the Republican attorney general submitted a civil rights bill to Congress in 1957 that would have done justice to the Republicans of the Reconstruction era. It was through the efforts of Southern Democrats in the Senate—not Southern Republicans—that the toughest provisions of the Republican civil rights bill were scrapped.

But the most ironic and humorous part of Shartzer's invitation to the unhappy Democrats is that they are being asked to join a political party whose president sent troops into Little Rock to enforce a school desegregation order.

Garroway Falls To Exhaustion

NEW YORK (UPI)—Television star Dave Garroway collapsed from exhaustion moments before his show was scheduled to go on the air early Thursday morning.

Garroway was taken to a hospital in an ambulance. A spokesman at the National Broadcasting Co. said an examination showed nothing seriously wrong and that Garroway probably would be back on his show NBC-TV next Monday.

An NBC spokesman said Garroway was preparing to go on his show when he "blacked out" and collapsed in a chair. He said Garroway has been "working very hard and is a very tired guy."

2 Atlantans Injured in Plane Crash

GRiffin (AP)—A four-passenger private plane crashed and burned near the Griffin-Spalding County Airport Thursday, injuring its two occupants.

They were listed at Spalding Hospital as Carl Wise of 104 Cleveland Ave., SE, Atlanta, owner of the single-engine Fairchild craft, and Mrs. Emily Brown, 178 Clifton St., Atlanta.

The plane, reported en route to Dublin, Ga., landed at the airport here Wednesday afternoon for repairs. It took off again shortly before noon Thursday and crashed a few minutes later.

Wise said the engine started vibrating and the propeller broke off. He managed to bring the plane down in a field where it flipped over and caught fire. Wise was thrown clear and he pulled Mrs. Brown from the wreckage.

U.S. Strength Depends On Soil, Talmadge Says

SPRINGFIELD, Ga. (AP)—The United States can be no stronger in its resistance to foreign ideologies than its ability to produce the needs of its people, Sen. Talmadge declared Thursday.

The Georgia Democrat spoke at ceremonies recognizing the "Man of the Year in Soil Conservation" from each county in the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District.

He described the soil conservation service as one of the greatest governmental undertakings of our generation and added, "It must be permitted to continue its vital work without restriction . . . our future depends upon it."

Talmadge said the country's capacity for production stems directly from the productivity of our soil.

The senator warned that "soil deterioration is one of the most alarming threats to an enduring America." He added that soil conservation is everybody's business.

F. H. Shearouse, secretary-treasurer of the Savannah Production Credit Assn., presented the awards to the six winners, chosen on the basis of outstanding accomplishments in soil and water conservation, general farming ability, and other qualities which make an outstanding farmer.

The 1958 award winners are Solomon R. Trapnell, Bulloch County; J. Raulins Morgan, Camden County; Grady L. Blocker, Evans; Sidney J. Morgan, Screven; George B. Ash Jr., Effingham, and Lee Kicklighter, Talbot.

GEORGIA NEWS ROUNDUP

It's Homecoming
In Bulging Athens

It's going to be Homecoming time in Athens this weekend.

The University of Georgia Bulldogs will meet the Wildcats of Kentucky in Sanford Stadium for the big game, the alumni will come back to the campus to renew school ties, and everybody is getting set to have a good time.

Homecoming, a sort of giant football festival, is the gayest weekend of the fall on the university campus, and all 6,000 university students are set to enjoy it.

Football is, of course, the reason for the Homecoming and Saturday's game is the real heart of the celebration. But like the big test at the circus, the game itself is but part of the act.

Friday night and again Saturday university students and alumni will dance to the music of Harry James and his orchestra in Stegeman Hall.

There are several special meetings for groups of University alumni scheduled Saturday. Open house for all alumni will be held at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Alumni of the College of Agriculture will meet in Conner Hall at 10 a.m., their meeting to be followed by a chicken barbecue luncheon. Meanwhile, pharmacy alumni will meet at the Pharmacy Building where Phi Delta Chi pharmaceutical fraternity will sponsor a barbecue in their honor.

'Termite' Trial Set

Jimmy Mack, 30, and Jack C. Carroll, 28, having been charged with fleeing elderly home owners by posing as termite inspectors, will be brought to trial in Ellijay next week, Dep. Sheriff C. W. (Bobo) Wilson of Hall County reported. The two face at least six counts of cheating and swindling, Wilson said. Gilmer County Dep. Sheriff James Ellington said the two men told elderly home owners the government would tear their homes down if they were not treated against termites. One of the "inspectors" showed a victim a deep scar on his leg and claimed it was caused by a "termite bite" that was nearly fatal, police said. One of the biggest damage suits in money value in Louisville, Ga., consumed 2½ days and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, Mrs. Grady Hutchins, of Bartow, for $7,500. The suit grew out of an automobile accident last September in Bartow. Lawyers for Mrs. Benson Jones, the defendant, said they will appeal the decision.

Waycross Is No. 3

Waycross is third in the nation in the production of pecans, reported William J. Monroe, representative of a new Ware pecan plant. Waycross is expected to produce more than 20 million pounds of pecans in 1958, Monroe said, led only by San Antonio, Tex., and St. Louis, Mo. Americans should maintain a high moral standard as an example to the uncommitted peoples of the world, Miss Mary Miller, Brunswick, told the Waycross Lions Club. Miss Miller, international affairs chairman for the Georgia Federation of Woman's Clubs, said acts like the dynamiting of The Temple in Atlanta "aid our enemies in their fanatic efforts to win the world for communism." The clubwoman also pointed out that more than 10 million Russians speak a foreign language while not half that many Americans even study a foreign language.

Mrs. George Enters
Macon Hospital

MACON, Ga. (UPI) — Mrs. Walter F. George, widow of the late U.S. Senator Walter F. George, has been admitted to Middle Georgia Hospital.

Mrs. George entered the hospital Thursday for examinations in connection with a liver ailment, her physician said.

Must Create Jobs, Warns
Vandiver

MACON (AP)—Gov. nominee Vandiver Thursday declared that one of the gravest problems confronting Georgians is providing industry and commerce in rural counties to absorb those workers being released from agriculture.

While agriculture still is a basic source of income in the state, Vandiver said in a speech prepared for delivery at the Georgia State Fair's "Governor's Day," cash jobs must be found for those no longer engaged in farming.

He said that "great progress" has been made in over half of the counties of our state already," and added:

"This progress must be continued in every county in the state in order that each man and woman, boy and girl may have the opportunity of obtaining a good livelihood in his home locality."

Vandiver congratulated Bibb County for the steps taken to advance industrial growth.

To maintain the "progressive prosperity" over the state, he said, Georgia must maintain "a healthy business atmosphere that will serve as an attraction to the ever-expanding American economy to move into this area."

At the same time, he said, the elected and appointed leadership of the state must assist local chambers of commerce, civic clubs and interested citizens groups "in their efforts to provide local conditions that will be conducive to the attraction of additional business and commerce."

Just 44 Irregularities,
Williams To Tell Jury

Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams will tell the Fulton Grand Jury Friday that he has pruned his department's Merit System irregularities to 44.

In addition, he announced Thursday that he had fired 10 more Revenue Department employees and adjusted the salaries of 26 others—some up and some down—in an effort to comply with Merit regulations.

WORK LATE

The commissioner, Merit System director E. L. Swain, revenue personnel officer Wyman Harris and other officials worked on the list of exceptions until 10 Wednesday night.

After the firings and adjustments, Williams asserted, there remained 44 exceptions: 38 without proper appointments and six being paid above scale.

"Virtually every one of these is being cleared," he added. "In the time I've had to work, I think I've made considerable headway," Williams stated.

1,000 EMPLOYEES

Last January there were as many as 600 exceptions in the Revenue Department listed by the Merit System. The department has slightly more than 1,000 employees.

U.S. Evacuating
In Rebel Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Navy has been ordered to evacuate 55 American women and children from an area held by rebels in northeast Cuba.

The State Department, in announcing this Thursday night, said the evacuation will be carried out as soon as possible.

The women and children are dependents of about 25 Americans who work at the U.S. government-owned Nicaro Nickel plant in the north coastal area of Oriente Province.

Jury considered an indictment against Williams for "willfully violating" the Merit System law. Instead, it issued a special presentment saying Williams had given a "solemn promise" to clear up the violations within 45 days.

Besides the 10 he fired Thursday, Williams earlier fired 64 other employees in connection with the mop-up. The commissioner said at least half of these have met Merit System requirements and been re-hired.

Police Shoot
And Seize 2

A Negro man Thursday was shot and wounded by Negro officers who said they had gone to a vacant house on Fairfax street, NE, to investigate a reported rape.

The suspect, listed as Willie Lee Gibson, 23, of a Merritts avenue, NE, address, was treated at Grady Hospital for a bullet wound in the leg.

Patrolmen R. Lane and R. A. Williams said they were told several men had dragged a Negro woman towards a vacant house on Fairfax, near Forest avenue. They said that, as they approached the house, Gibson ran.

Lane said he fired one warning shot which Gibson ignored and then fired another which struck the fleeing man's leg.

Officers said Gibson and two others—Nathaniel Hayes, 18, of 266 Forrest Ave. and Marion Mozie, 20, of a Longview avenue address, were held on charges of rape.

The victim in the reported rape was arrested on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct, prostitution and cursing, officers said.

2 Counts Make Like College Freshmen In Round-World Hijinks for $8,000 Bet

NEW YORK (AP)—The sum of $8,000 has two Belgian counts acting like freshmen pledging a college fraternity.

All the world is a playground for Abel Armand and Marc-Antoine d'Oultremont. The $8,000, anted up by a Belgian better, goes to the counts if they can perform 30 of 33 stunts on a round-the-world trip.

Freshmen on treasure hunts have nothing on these Belgian bluebloods. Among the hijinks they've performed successfully are being photographed in India with cobras around their necks and obtaining a strait jacket in China.

One item they couldn't manage was getting a convict's suit at Alcatraz.

With two areas still to be invaded—Bermuda and Montreal—the counts arrived here Thursday to:

Obtaining a drum majorette's hat.

Be photographed at the Statue of Liberty.

The man who stands to lose $8,000 if the counts succeed is Dino Vastapane, European manager of a vermouth firm. According to Count Armand, Vastapane has a tremendous sense of humor.

There's at least one good reason, also, according to Count Armand, Vastapane is "always betting and he always wins."

The counts already have visited Tehran, New Delhi, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Tokyo and Honolulu since their trip began last Sept. 30.

Russian Anti-Red Wins Nobel Honor

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—The Nobel prize for literature was awarded Thursday to Boris Pasternak, a Soviet writer whose "Doctor Zhivago" criticizes communism.

This book, banned in the Soviet Union and printed abroad over Soviet objection, is the first novel of the 68-year-old Russian poet.

The 18 members of the Royal Swedish Academy made the Nobel award worth $41,420.

The academy notified both Pasternak and Nikolai Voinov, Soviet charge d'affaires in Stockholm, of the award decision.

There was speculation that Soviet authorities may take reprisals against Pasternak or at least prevent him from receiving his prize. Nobel prize winners generally come here to receive their awards and to discourse on their field.

An Associated Press correspondent in Moscow interviewed Pasternak Thursday, but transmission of the story was still delayed by Soviet censorship Thursday night.

A Swedish literary critic who saw Pasternak recently reported Pasternak "appears to have reached an inner mental peace which renders him completely uninterested in any reprisals that might be taken against him."

Pasternak worked quietly on the novel for 10 years. He had been noted for verses and stories with a revolutionary theme up to 1933. Some called him the Soviet Union's greatest poet.

In 1956, when writers had a little more freedom under the de-stalinization program, Pasternak completed "Doctor Zhivago."

A pro-Communist editor in Italy who received the manuscript—smuggled out of the Soviet Union—insisted on printing the 700-page novel last year despite Soviet pressure to squelch it.

Its hero is Yuri Andreyevich Zhivago, a wealthy doctor and writer. The central figure tells of what he considers the loss of personal and mass freedom and the tragedy of Russia under communism and collectivization.

Atlanta Depot Gets Oil Lab

The 959th Quartermaster mobile petroleum laboratory has been assigned to the Atlanta General Depot.

The unit, commanded by Capt. S. J. Strickler, will provide technical assistance to commanding officers of Army installations in the Third Army area and the states of Illinois and Indiana. In addition, the unit will conduct tests and control the quality on all types of petroleum products and containers.

The organization was transferred to the Depot from Charleston, S.C.

Graham's Crowds Climb to 411,740

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—With two services left, attendance at Billy Graham's five-week crusade jumped to 411,740 Thursday night when another overflow crowd turned out to hear the evangelist.

A standing-room only crowd of 12,800 jammed into the main arena of the Coliseum long before the service started. Another 2,000 sat in adjacent Oens auditorium which is equipped with closed-circuit television.

Graham told his audience that most Americans do not have the power within themselves to resist temptations, and said:

"Not until man teams with God, and only then, can he resist the subtleties and deceptions that lead to sin."

Smoking Tests on Animals Said to Show No Cancer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Five different groups of scientists have subjected experimental animals to cigarette smoke and tars without producing a single case of cancer, the Tobacco Institute, Inc., said Thursday.

In three of the tests, the animals actually inhaled cigarette smoke, the institute said in its publication "Tobacco and Health." In another experiment, it said, mice "smoked" the equivalent of 600 to 800 cigarettes a day without developing lung cancer.

The institute also quoted Dr. Percy Stocks, a British doctor, as saying "drinking beer and tea, eating fried foods, early marriage, air pollution and a certain kind of soil, as well as cigarette smoking, are associated with the incidence of cancer." The institute, which is supported by U.S. tobacco companies, has been conducting a campaign to counteract the findings of some scientists that there is a statistical relationship between smoking and lung cancer.

The U.S. Public Health Service issued a report on smoking and cancer in July which it said "adds further to the growing weight of evidence that there is a high degree of statistical association between lung cancer and heavy and prolonged cigarette smoking."

As I See It

Paar To Abandon His NBC Late Show

By PAUL JONES

Constitution Television Editor

NEW YORK—Jack Paar plans to abandon his important night show on NBC-TV, he told me here when I talked to him at Toots Shor's restaurant.

Paar said it was "embarrassing" to discuss his plans, and NBC executives had asked him not to talk about it, but he said, "I cannot lie. I am going to quit. You have no idea how hard the show is to do."

Paar also disclosed he was going to quit last July, and that he had received other offers.

The Paar problem began to come to a head Wednesday when TV critics, here for the annual press tour, cornered an NBC-TV vice president in the lobby of the Plaza Hotel and asked him what was behind Paar's expressed dissatisfaction with the show.

In recent weeks, Paar has made several references on the air about the show being too long.

The TV executive confirmed that Paar is unhappy about this situation. He said the network was contemplating three alternatives: (1) To get a guest star to fill in for Paar on two nights a week; (2) to film part of the show in advance; (3) to drop Paar from the network altogether.

Ben Gunn Quits As Announcer At WAGA-TV

The managing director of WAGA-TV Wednesday confirmed that Ben Gunn has resigned as an announcer.

Robert Kerns said Gunn submitted his resignation late Tuesday and that the station accepted it.

Kerns refused to comment on reports that Gunn was forced to resign as a result of controversy that grew out of a program Gunn presented recently regarding the dynamiting of the Jewish Temple.

Gunn, however, declared: "I was told that I had placed the station in an embarrassing position and that it would be better that I resign. I tendered my resignation."

Mayor Hartsfield and Police Chief Herbert Jenkins protested a program shown last Friday at 7 p.m., Gunn said.

The third move, which now seems the most likely in the light of what Paar told me, will rob the network of one of its most talked-about personalities. For Paar has done more with the late, late show than anyone, even including Steve Allen, who actually gained his greatest prominence in this very spot.

But Paar is known as a man of many moods. He was described as a "complex personality" by the NBC-TV executive, who was very outspoken in outlining the three courses of action now being studied.

KATHRYN MURRAY, the charming hostess on the Dance Party, says her husband "looks like an undertaker" on television.

But, she added, in haste, "He is fun to live with."

Mrs. Murray said that she has never taken a dancing lesson from her famous mate, because she says "Husbands can't teach their wives anything. All they can do is criticize."

I was guest at their Fifth Avenue studios here and I learned to do the cha-cha in one easy lesson. Mrs. Murray was my teacher, of course.

BOB HOPE got off some good lines at a luncheon at which he was named "Man of the Year" by Pulse, Inc., the people who rate the TV shows. Here are some of them:

"You should have picked Mickey Hargitay (husband of Jayne Mansfield). His pulse has been through more than anybody's."

"I'm making a new picture for Paramount. . . It's an adult Western. . . We're using older horses. . . It's new to me. . . I feel kind of silly walking around in these high heel boots. . . It reminds me of the morning I got up on the wrong side of the bed."

TELEPLAY STAR—Hollywood's Jeanne Crain has the title role in "The Trouble With Ruth" on Schlitz Playhouse at 9:30 p.m. Friday on Channel 5. She is cast as a kleptomaniac who is blackmailed into taking part in a daring jewelry theft.

Truman, Attlee on TV Hookup

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.) NEW YORK—Former President Truman and former British Prime Minister Attlee have agreed to hold a transatlantic telephone conversation for Edward R. Murrow's Small World program.

The conversation will be filmed about the middle of November and televised later that month.

Attlee, who was prime minister when Truman was president, will talk from a British Broadcasting Corp. studio in London. Truman will speak from his office in the Truman Memorial Library in Independence, Mo.

Small World normally features three guests, but no other will be invited to join the former heads of state. Murrow said he hopes the two will discuss, among other things, the relative merits of the British governmental system and the U.S. Constitution.

Small World is televised by the Columbia Broadcasting System on Sundays from 6 to 6:30 p.m.

Diana Dors Collapses

LONDON (UPI)—Blonde British movie actress Diana Dors was reported seriously ill Thursday after collapsing in her London apartment. Comedian Dickie Dawson, a close friend of the bosomy actress, said Miss Dors apparently had influenza.

Panel Votes Standards In Zoning

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Atlanta's first subdivision ordinance was approved Thursday by the aldermanic board's zoning committee which also moved to double hearings on zoning petitions filed in the future.

The committee adopted improvement and design standards for subdivisions, a control measure required for federal help in financing a multi-million dollar urban renewal program for Atlanta.

A delegation from the Atlanta Real Estate Board obtained a concession for tracts already zoned for business or commercial use. Arthur Burdett, president of the realty organization, was chief spokesman.

MAY DIVIDE

Under the exemption, tracts so zoned may be divided without further action by the city if the parcels "thus created shall abut on existing streets or streets which have been approved and accepted by the city and upon which all street improvements have been installed."

The 30-page ordinance sets up minimum requirements for streets, and other facilities and for obtaining approval of design to be sure it conforms generally with the over-all master plan for development.

Sub-dividers are required to file eight copies of the plans accompanied by plans for the projected developments.

It developed Thursday that the zoning committee and the joint Atlanta-Fulton county planning board may be at logger heads over public hearings for proposed changes in zoning.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

Last week, the planning group decided to avail itself of a permissive section in existing laws and voted to hold public hearings before passing on zoning matters. The law specifically says the zoning committee must hold such hearings, but allows the planning group in its discretion to hold a hearing also.

The board passes on petitions before they reach the zoning committee.

The zoning group voted to write the planning group and ask it to refrain from holding public hearings. It was said dual public hearings would require delegations and petitioners to make the same arguments before each of the groups.

DELAY PETITIONS

Committee members also said the planning board should pass on whether or not a proposal "is good zoning without outside influences." It also was stressed that dual public hearings would delay routine petitions and that instead of clearing in the now required six weeks, 10 weeks would be required.

The Committee also approved five petitions adversely one and held another for further study.

Advised was a measure affecting a site on Whiteford avenue near Vaughn street, SE. Held was a measure asking business use of a tract on Moreland avenue near Kirkwood avenue, SE. All other petitions were approved.

Williams' Trial Is Set For Nov. 3

Trial of State Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams on charges of larceny after trust was definitely set Thursday for Nov. 3 before Judge Durwood T. Pyle in Fulton Superior Court.

Date of the trial had already been tentatively announced, but it was not final until Judge Claude D. Shaw approved the court calendar Thursday.

Williams is being brought to trial on charges that he converted to his own use some $48,000 of funds entrusted to him by liquor dealers.

The approved court calendar also includes trial dates for bribery charges against two former Atlanta policemen, Paul F. Bennett and C. E. Carter. Both men had filed demands for trial on charges that they accepted money from lottery figure Horace Ingram.

These cases were set down for trial Nov. 3 before Judge E. E. Andrews.

Council Pushes For Big Vote

An intensive campaign to get out the vote for the Nov. 4 general election has been planned by the Atlanta Metropolitan Voting Council.

The body's executive committee said the effort will include presentation of educational material on constitutional amendments which will be voted on in the election, as well as promotional efforts through radio, television and civic clubs.

Coroner's Budget Rise Is Sought

A special committee of the Fulton County Medical Society Thursday called on the County Budget Commission to provide funds in 1959 to reorganize completely the county coroner's office.

Dr. Sterling Claiborne, chairman of the committee, said the coroner's office "now has a lack of manpower to investigate all deaths." He declared that the office "is not functioning up to the desires" of a city as large as Atlanta and a county as large as Fulton.

Requesting an increase from $30,000 to $75,000 in the coroner's annual budget, Dr. Claiborne said the office needs a full-time medical examiner, two medical examiner associates and a legal secretary.

Crime detection was given as the major reason for the need for expansion of the office. Dr. Claiborne said autopsies are now performed on only one-half of one per cent of all deaths. He said the percentage of autopsies should be about 20 per cent.

Dr. Claiborne also pointed to health reasons in supporting the need of reorganization. He said proper examinations would help detect rare diseases as causes of death and might prevent epidemics.

This was the only request showing any major increase among those reviewed by the budget commission. County Commission Chairman Carlyle Fraser, who is on the commission, complimented department heads for keeping down budget requests.

Kaye Turns Serious In 'Me and the Colonel'

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

That incomparable comic, Danny Kaye, heads a top-flight cast in "Me and the Colonel," now showing at the Rialto.

Kaye has virtually a straight dramatic role as a resourceful Polish refugee keeping just a hop and skip ahead of advancing Nazis in 1940 France.

You might not think a hunted man's plight would lend itself to a tongue-in-cheek adventure drama with high comedy overtones. But this screen adaptation of the play "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" adds up to just that. Kaye's acting, some witty dialogue, and a blend of realism and nonsense are responsible. Moviegoers will find themselves torn between nail-biting suspense and laughter throughout 100 minutes of preposterous occurrences.

The French actress Nicole Maury, Curt Jurgens, and Akim Tamiroff give Kaye able support. Jurgens does a masterful interpretation of the bibulous, amorous, comic-opera type, Colonel Prokopy. There are engaging minor characters, including a barmaid, a Paris hotel-keeper, and a nun who befriends Kaye in his flight. Peter Glenville's direction deserves kudos. This lightning-paced comedy-drama is good entertainment for the whole family.

'Man of the West'

Durable Gary Cooper has played in some good Westerns in the past, and he has another choice shoot-'em-up vehicle in "Man of the West," opening at Loew's Grand Friday.

This one should come under the category of "adult" Western. There are no catfights, no stagecoaches, no chase — and the cast includes sultry singer Julie London.

A couple of scenes involving Miss London are not recommended for the juveniles who usually make up the bulk of outdoor picture audiences.

Lee J. Cobb gives a vivid performance as the psychopathic leader of a gang of train-robbing badmen. There is plenty of rough-and-tumble action, with suspense concentrated on principal charac-

Gielgud Puts Magic Into Shakespeare

By ALAN GILLON

Sir John Gielgud, world renowned for his performances as "Hamlet," Thursday night showed himself off to his best advantage as a dozen other characters from Shakespeare's plays.

Appearing in an anthological work called "Shakespeare's Ages of Man" at Pressley Hall at Agnes Scott College, Gielgud contrasted the maturity of man with callow youth in selected readings from Shakespeare's plays, sonnets and songs.

Gielgud, who says he prefers working in straight plays, because "it's awfully frightening being out there alone, without anyone to help you," sensitively conveyed the feeling and mood of each scene.

Drawing the audience into the parts, he made it easy to visualize the young man, Romeo, bending sorrowful over the bier of Juliette. Again, as the dying King Lear, Gielgud's capable performance aroused the sympathy of the audience for the old man gasping out his remorse for a life all too soon spent.

Sir John worked alone on the stage, dressed in a tuxedo, with a book on a table as his only prop, but still the magic of talent put into his hands all of the properties he needed.

The program was one of a series of productions in the Agnes Scott Lecture Assn. series for the year.

Double Feature

Dyed-in-the-wool Western fans have a double-feature treat at the Paramount, now showing "Cole Younger, Gunfighter" and "Man From God's Country." Frank Lovejoy has the title role in the first picture, set during pioneer days when an infamous police force ruled Texas. The second feature stars George Montgomery as a former lawman seeking a Civil War buddy turned outlaw. Both follow shoot-'em-up formulas to the letter.

'Henry V' at Art

Shakespeare's "Henry V" in color and Cinema-Scope is back at the Peachtree Art. Producer-director-actor Laurence Olivier plays the king. The long list of supporting actors includes Leslie Banks and Felix Aylmer. The picture, which won critic's plaudits in all departments when it was originally released, is well worth seeing more than once.

Huge Ships Planned

TOKYO (UPI)—H. B. Cantor, an American hotel executive, said Thursday that the contracts had been drawn for the construction of two 90,000-ton transatlantic passenger liners by a Japanese dock yard.

'Bravos!' Boom Out For Ailing Pennario

By RICHARD E. GRAY

Bombastic piano virtuoso Leonard Pennario, ill all day Thursday with what he suspects is a virus infection, went on stage as scheduled Thursday night and drew the first loud chorus of "Bravo!" heard in Atlanta this year.

A near-capacity crowd of 1,800 cheered the popular young pianist after a stirring performance with the Atlanta Symphony at the Tower Theatre.

An overflow audience is expected at the repeat performance Friday night (8:30), and an overflow crowd is what this artist deserves.

His first selection, the modern and difficult Piano Concerto No. 3 by Bartok, brought hearty applause and three curtain calls.

Pennario returned after intermission to perform the Piano Concerto No. 3 by Rachmaninoff. At the crashing climax of the last movement, "Bravo" rang through the hall and the applause was thunderous—calling the ailing artist back for six curtain calls.

He declined to play an encore (last year he played two). Asked why, he said: "I think that after those two numbers, anything would be an anticlimax." He obviously was not feeling in the best of health, although this was not evident from his playing.

Pennario is a pleasure to watch.

He plays with great zest and obvious enjoyment. He exudes confidence. His technique is so near-perfect that he can give his every thought to the mood and interpretation of the music. He can use his hands like sledgehammers, like butterfly wings, or like a mother tenderly bathing her baby.

His appearance is impressive. In fact, when he made his first appearance on stage, one blonde young thing in the audience gushed: "Even if he can't play, I bet he sure can intermission!"

The orchestra, conducted by Henry Sopkin with his usual feeling and control, provided excellent backing for the soloist.

The orchestra also was effective in its own two offerings. Sopkin led a rich, well-balanced reading of Bach's "Arioso," and a solid, dynamic rendition of Beethoven's First Symphony in which the woodwinds, especially the solo oboe, were excellent.

People at home had their first opportunity to hear a live performance of the symphony via radio. It was aired by WGKA-FM.

Questions Answered

M. W. writes: Why is it necessary to reduce overweight before a hernia operation?

REPLY: This advice is given because the obese candidate for hernia operation has two strikes against him. Complications are more common and the excess blubber makes the operation more difficult.

T. W. writes: Does the face ever go back to normal after Bell's palsy?

REPLY: In the majority of cases, tell-tale evidence of the disease remains. But it may be so slight only an expert could note the change.

J. E. writes: How long before a track meet should you eat?

REPLY: Three to five hours, depending on whether you high jump or run the mile. The meal should be satisfying and easily digested.

M. L. writes: My doctor tells me I have a hernia. X-rays show that the upper part of the stomach has pushed its way through the diaphragm and is in the chest. He says surgery is not necessary. Are there any additional recommendations?

REPLY: Eat bland food, sleep in a semi-recumbent position at night, and use belladonna after meals. Also avoid violent coughing, straining, and tight garments around the abdomen, because they aggravate hiatus hernia.

Mrs. T. writes: At age 48 I find housework too painful to do, especially when kneeling and bending are called for. What causes pain in the muscles and stiffness in the joints?

REPLY: Rheumatism. You need help if pain is this severe. Your physician has medicine that will help.

J. W. writes: When you are young, is every lost hair replaced by another?

REPLY: As a rule, yes. The fellow who discovers why this fails to occur later in life in those who get bald deserves a Nobel prize.

E. K. writes: Do pneumonia spots on the lungs disappear after recovery?

REPLY: Yes. In more than 90 per cent of cases the lungs heal without leaving the slightest trace of pneumonia.

The bidding:
 West North East South
 Pass 2 clubs Pass 2 spades
 Pass 3 spades Pass 4 spades
 Pass 6 spades Pass Pass

Opening lead: Diamond 8.
 Declarer permitted a singleton lead to throw him into a state of panic today, and in his haste to draw trumps he nearly pitched away a slam contract.

North had a very sound demand opening and after South made a positive response in spades, North considered that prospects for a grand slam were pretty good.

He temporized with a simple raise in spades in order to set the trump suit. It was his hope that partner would now be in position to embark on a Blackwood inquiry. When South instead merely proceeded to game, North feared that trumps might not be solid and he settled for a small slam.

West opened with the 8 of diamonds which declarer won in dummy. Fearing a possible ruff, he then played the ace and another spade.

When East showed out, South went up with the king and continued with the jack. West won with the queen and returned a club, taken in dummy with the king.

On the ace of clubs, South discarded a heart. He then cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed himself in with a club to draw the last trump. It appeared on the surface that he must give up a heart and go down one, but he had unwittingly placed East in a fatal squeeze. East was down to three diamonds and two hearts and was unable to discard on the last trump.

It was extremely fortunate for South that East had so much in the red suits. Actually, declarer had from the start a simple and completely safe play available. He wins the opening diamond lead, cashes the ace of hearts, and plays the eight of spades and passes it.

West can make no embarrassing return. If he leads a club, declarer ruffs himself in with a club, ruffs a low heart in dummy with the ace, draws trumps and the battle is over.

Some Frauds Make You Cuss—Some Kill

When you go to the polls in November you'll be given a chance to vote either for or against an amendment to the state constitution that would allow a payment of $100,000 to the "first person, firm or corporation developing a practical method of eradicating the boll weevil at a reasonable cost."

John E. Drewry, dean of the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism at the University of Georgia, used to tell us students in one of his courses a story to illustrate how advertising can be truthful and still fraudulent. Here's the story:

When the boll weevil hit Georgia a staggering punch in its agricultural body, ads started appearing in magazines and papers with Southern circulation: "Send one dollar for guaranteed method of killing boll weevils. Works every time"—and an address.

Thousands of desperate Georgia farmers sent their precious dollars for the "cure." What they got back was two wooden blocks and a set of directions. "Place Block A on a table. Place boll weevil on Block A. Place Block B on boll weevil. Strike Block B sharply with a hammer."

Well, it worked.

Other Frauds Can Kill You

Some frauds just make you cuss, like the one above. Others can kill you, and for some reason or other, are harder to stop than simple frauds like the boll weevil squasher. Medical frauds keep cropping up, and just as fast as one is prosecuted and put off the market, another will take its place.

The medical frauds prey on fear, and right now they are concentrating on cancer—a disease that CAN be cured, but not by a quack. There is nothing in your medicine cabinet and nothing in any drugstore which can cure cancer, but Americans spend $10,000,000 each year for nostrums, potions, salves and even electrical or supposedly radioactive gadgets.

Last spring I wrote about an exhibit prepared by the Georgia Division of the American Cancer Society. The exhibit featured the quack cures which had been for sale in Georgia. Since that time many of you may have seen the exhibit in your home towns and met its director, Ed Bridges, of the Georgia Division.

Ed tells me that there are more fraudulent cures cropping up every day. A fraud is easy to spot: just ask your family doctor for his advice about the man with the "miraculous" cure. Other signs of the quack: He advertises, which no reputable doctor does. He guarantees cures, and all a reputable doctor will guarantee is to do his best. The quack will have testimonials to prior cures. One of the best ways to spot him—he will refuse to discuss the case with your family doctor.

Don't deal with quacks, but DO see your doctor immediately if you spot any of these cancer danger signals in yourself: 1. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. Any sore that does not heal. 4. Any change in wart or mole. 5. Persistent hoarseness or cough. 6. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, and 7. Persistent change in bowel or bladder.

The tragic fact of cancer is that every sixth cancer death is a NEEDLESS death. If the cancer had been spotted earlier, the patient could have been saved.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

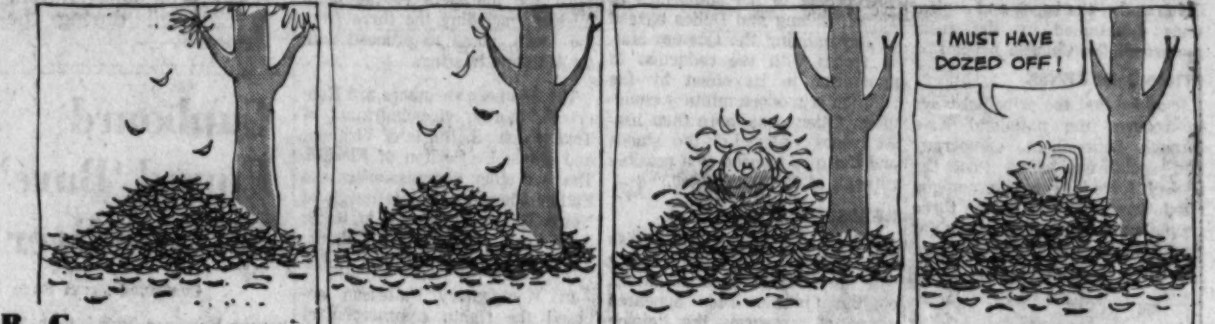

"While there is much in the way of salacious and unedifying reading matter being published, there are also many good books available on an endless variety of subjects; fiction, biography, history and science."—Book notes.

Books: We have all kinds and sizes . . . Some of them we get as prizes . . . Some were borrowed and they ought to be returned . . . Some were written by the masters . . . Some are hot as mustard plasters . . . And the censors say they should be banned or burned.

Some are in the category . . . Of the old detective story . . . Where the villain gets his "uppance" in the end . . . Some are mostly drink and fighting . . . And some sex that is exciting . . . which, I think, your pastor wouldn't recommend.

But the people who supply them . . . Know a lot of folks will buy them . . . And the authors who compose them wouldn't waste . . . Hours in their composition . . . Re-revision and edition . . . If they knew it wouldn't suit the public taste.

They'll be read if they are rotten . . . While the good ones are forgotten . . . Sandwiched in between the others on our shelves . . . It's a matter of selection . . . And, perhaps, for our protection . . . We should do a little censoring, ourselves.

Dulles Rules Out Attack on Reds together with the Matsus is closely related to the defense of Taiwan (Formosa) and Penghu (the Pescadore) islands in Formosa Strait.

It added that the Chinese Communists and the Russians "cannot possibly succeed" in trying to conquer Formosa, eliminate Nationalist China and expel the United States from the western Pacific.

"It is hoped and believed that the Communists, faced by the proven unity, resolution and strength of the governments of the United States and the Republic of China will not put their policy to the test of general war and that they will abandon the military steps they have already taken to initiate their futile and dangerous policy," the communique added.

"The United States recognizes that the Republic of China is the authentic spokesman for free China and of the hopes and aspirations entertained by the great masses of the Chinese people."

STRONG DEFENSE

It added that the principal ways to recover the mainland are through nationalism, democracy and social well-being, "not the use of force." The communique cited those methods as the three people's principles of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, founder of the Republic of China.

Soviet Says Britain Is Meddling in Cuba

LONDON (UPI)—Moscow radio Thursday accused Britain of meddling in Cuba's internal affairs by selling fighter planes to the Cuban government of President Fulgencio Batista. The broadcast said that until now "Batista's anti-democratic regime has held up mainly owing to U.S. interference." It added: "Now Britain has joined this interference and this at a moment when Batista's position is particularly shaky."

Dulles told his British audience that, "The whole position of the free world in the Western Pacific, running from Japan . . . down to Viet Nam, Australia and New Zealand, depends upon maintaining a strong line against the thrusts of the Chinese Communists."

"It's a thin line," he said. "It's not a continuous line such as you have in Western Europe. And it can only be held, in our opinion, if we stand firm."

The formal communique did not go into the question of Chiang's cutting his forces on the offshore islands. But news dispatches from Taipei said it was learned Chiang had agreed to consider this step—long advocated by the United States—if the Communists silence their guns. That they might do this, perhaps after sporadic outbursts of shelling the Nationalist positions was indicated by reports that the Red bombardment of Quemoy had let up.

According to the authorities at Taipei, Chiang and Dulles agreed on streamlining the Quemoy-Matsu forces with the reduction in manpower to be offset by the addition of modern military equipment. Chiang has more than 100,000 troops deployed on the islands and the report spoke of a possible cutback of 15,000 to 20,000.

REASSURING REDS

Dulles' statement in the British TV interview that this country will not tolerate surprise attack on the Chinese Reds appeared aimed at reassuring the Peiping regime.

Chiang's Nationalists have promised not to attempt an invasion of the mainland unless this country agrees. Dulles' remark implied that the United States has no intention of giving its assent except in answer to a prior attack from the Reds.

"We don't believe," he said, "that in the case of civil wars of this sort that force ought to be used by either side at a point where it involves great international complications."

the would-be voter's national origin.

The commission also announced that it would hold public hearings in New York City starting next Feb. 2 on the subject of discrimination in housing.

Dr. Hannah said the inquiry would be purely a fact-finding one. Reporters asked Dr. Hannah why the commission has not scheduled hearing on education, in Little Rock, for example, or in the Virginia areas where schools have been closed to avoid racial integration.

Dr. Hannah said no need has been felt for school hearings so far. He repeated that the commission "is a fact-finding organization," and said it was not clear what good the group could do in the troubled school situation.

All the members of the commission, including the three from the south, voted to proceed with an Alabama hearing.

The Southern members are Robert G. Storey, vice-chairman, of Texas; John S. Battle of Virginia, and Doyle E. Carlton of Florida. The two other commissioners are Father Theodore M. Hesburgh of Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind., and Ernest Wilkins, assistant secretary of labor.

In Montgomery Patterson accused the rights commission of playing politics.

Patterson denounced as "politically inspired" the commission's announcement that a hearing will be held to look into charges of the denial of Negroes' voting rights.

The attorney general said Thursday's announcement from the commission "is further proof of the intention of the Republican administration to destroy the rights of the states and reduce our Constitution to a mere scrap of paper."

name, Vandiver noted that "we have heard claims that a substantial part of the money was spent for so-called 'non-recurring' items" to justify the spending of the surplus money.

Griffin has defended the spending program of his administration by declaring that much of the surplus has gone for "non-recurring capital improvement projects, such as purchase of Stone Mountain.

"Any banker and any businessman knows that when money is spent for capital improvements, the expense has only just begun," Vandiver said. "It costs money for year-by-year operations."

"NONRECURRING ITEM"

As an example, Vandiver said that $1 million may be committed to a specific project in one year that will require $7 million for full development of the project in later years.

"It means nothing to call this capital expenditure a 'non-recurring' item because once the project is underway the state must spend additional money to keep the project going," Vandiver declared.

"All this talk about 'recurring' and 'non-recurring' items is a smoke screen laid down in an attempt to obscure the fact that the cupboard is bare," he said.

In another criticism of the Griffin administration, Vandiver said that the $35 million surplus has been spent "without any real effort being made to economize in state operations."

Vandiver compared the fiscal problem of the state government with that of an insolvent bank.

"Perhaps not many of you have ever taken over an insolvent bank, but I am sure that some of the old heads with whom you work can tell you something of the problems presented by such a situation," he said.

"Under such circumstances, it is necessary, first, to correct the evils which have caused the insolvency. If some official or some employee of the bank has been absconding with the depositors' money, it is necessary to remove him from the temptation.

GETTING SOLVENT

"Then, it is necessary to examine the business structure of the bank, as well as its personnel structure, and to make those adjustments which may be indicated in order to put the institution on a solvent, operating basis," Vandiver said.

To meet the financial crisis, Vandiver said, it will be necessary to determine how much money will be needed over the next several years for the essential state services such as education.

After this determination is made, Vandiver said, the state must determine "how much we can afford to budget for these purposes and make our plans accordingly to meet these essential needs within the limitation of state income."

Vandiver promised that his administration will follow "wise and conservative fiscal policies to restore order in place of the financial chaos in which our state now finds itself."

Before any new expenditure is undertaken, Vandiver said, his administration will determine if it is necessary, if it will benefit "the masses of the people," if it will contribute to the growth and prosperity of the state, if the state can afford it, and if it can be done without hurting other programs already underway.

"Unless we can answer all these questions in the affirmative, we had best concentrate our available resources on education, health, welfare, highways, institutions and other essential services," Vandiver said.

Bomb Call Evacuates Ga. State

15 minutes later, when police decided the threat was a prank.

An afternoon threat closed classes for 605 boys and girls at the Bouldercrest elementary school. A morning scare at the Chamblee High School kept 905 students from their studies.

The school principals, Edward G. Dick of Bouldercrest, and Howell C. Martin of Chamblee, notified police immediately after receipt of telephone threats. The buildings were evacuated in three or four minutes.

The Chamblee school resumed classes after no bomb was found. The Bouldercrest students were sent home.

WORK OF IDIOT?

"Even though it's probably the work of an idiot or somebody's idea of a joke, I'm scared to death to go back inside," said Miss Delores Wynn, a Georgia State graduate student.

Gov. Griffin issued a statement blasting the perpetrators and promising state help for local police in hunting down the culprits.

"I have ordered the full resources of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation to be used in assisting local law enforcement officials to track down and arrest any person or persons making threats of violence," the governor said.

"I want the full investigative forces of the GBI employed in finding and arresting these obvious smart-alecks who think it's funny to disrupt the order of our public institutions and make threats of violence against men and women—even children—in schools and in other public and private buildings.

"DEMENTED INDIVIDUALS"

"I hope our law enforcement agencies will see to it that such demented individuals are caught and put into jail, where their sordid jokes can be dealt with by a society that is far from amused."

Meanwhile, investigators were busy Thursday "tying up loose ends" in the bombing of the Jewish Temple, Capt. R. E. Little said.

Little disclosed that no report had been received from the FBI laboratory on a dynamite bomb which was found Tuesday along Chamblee-Dunwoody road in Chamblee.

BOMB AT WELL

Little said an increasing effort was being made to determine who left the 20-stick bomb beside an abandoned well on a vacant lot in Chamblee. He added no definite conclusion had been reached as yet.

"Right now we are busy tying up loose ends on things we already knew about," he said. "We are also cutting out some chaff that got mixed in with the wheat as the investigation went along."

Little said no additional arrests are anticipated in the immediate future.

upheaval. Their faces were black and grim. They said their mates were trapped.

Hundreds of disaster-conscious residents flocked to the mine entrance.

Hiram B. C. Thompson, for 40 years a mines inspector, said the cause of a bump is often undetermined. He described this area as susceptible to bumps.

The slope into the No. 2 mine, where coal seams are worked as far as three miles down, often slants at a 45-degree angle. The working levels branch off from this slope. Thompson said the mine was one of the deepest in the world.

William Perrin, who worked the day shift, stood near the mine with tears streaming down his cheeks.

"It's pretty bad down there as I understand it," he said. "I've got a brother and a brother-in-law down there. I only hope that God keeps them alive."

A navy helicopter flew blood plasma from Halifax. Two Red Cross trucks left Halifax with 25 beds and were to pick up another 25 en route. And three Navy ambulances also were on the way.

Canadian air force planes stood by at Greenwood, N.S., to fly in supplies.

Crowds at the mine were kept back by a rope barrier. The grim days of November 1956 were being relived by most of the hundreds of townfolk who flocked to the mine entrance. Many of those waiting at the pit head had lost fathers, sons or brothers among the 39 who died two years ago.

Farmer Is Killed In Fairburn Crash

One person was fatally injured Thursday and another hurt in the collision of two autos on the Palmetto-Cascade highway and Wilkinson Mill road, near Fairburn, police said.

James Claude Maddox, 51, of Rte. 1, Palmetto, died after reaching Grady Hospital, Patrolmen, W. E. Thompson, W. I. Walker and B. L. Bentley of the Fulton unincorporated patrol said.

Mr. Maddox was identified as the driver of a car traveling east on Wilkinson Mill road. Miss Ann Mildred Bryan of Albany, was driving north on the Palmetto-Cascade highway, a newly paved road, officers said.

BLOCKED STREETS

Police blocked cross street intersections for an ambulance which rushed Mr. Maddox, a farmer, to Grady.

Miss Bryan was treated at Grady hospital and later transferred to a private hospital.

An Atlanta couple was injured Thursday in a truck-crash at Lakewood avenue and Lakewood way, SE, police said.

C. T. Eavenson, 60, of 1831 Lakewood Terr., SE, was admitted to Georgia Baptist Hospital. Patrolman J. A. Tinsley said. His injuries were given as a fractured pelvis, fractured shoulder and chest injuries.

CUTS AND BRUISES

Mrs. Eavenson suffered cuts and bruises.

Tinsley said the Eavenson auto, traveling southwest on Lakewood avenue, was in collision with a truck driven south on Lakewood way by Robert L. Arnold, Rte. 2, Fayetteville.

The auto was hurled against a utility pole, Tinsley said.

GM Negotiations Here Continue to Progress

"Substantial progress" was reported Thursday night in negotiations between Local 10, United Auto Workers, and officials of the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac assembly plant in Doraville.

W. J. Porter, president of Local 10, said negotiations were still going on, and that "substantial progress" was being made. The strike involves local issues. Negotiations will continue Friday, Porter said.

Public Hearings Called to Take Up New Bills

Fulton County's legislators have scheduled public hearings at 10 a.m. Nov. 12 and 13 to discuss legislation which local citizens and public officials want passed in the 1959 General Assembly.

Sen. Charlie Brown said the delegation is requesting that county officials and officials of municipalities in the county appear before the delegation with proposed legislation at either morning or afternoon session.

Brown said the public is invited to attend afternoon sessions.

Teacher Is Charged In Paddling

A Mableton grammar school teacher is under $100 bond on a charge of whipping one of her pupils with a paddle.

A child-beating warrant was sworn out Wednesday against Mrs. J. C. Morris, a seventh grade teacher. She was accused of striking 13-year-old Larry Moore as punishment for fighting.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Moore, who placed the charge, said her son was "bruised, but not seriously hurt." She said he was hit with a hand-paddle that is ordinarily used in children's games with a rubber ball attached.

Mrs. Moore said that her son told her that he engaged in a "fight" and was sent to the principal's office. He was then turned over to his teacher, she said.

Mrs. Morris said she believed she "was in the right," and that the youngster was not harmed.

School principal J. W. Cantrell said he felt that "on the whole the teacher was in the right." He said paddling as a punitive measure is authorized at the school.

Denied Rabies Serum, Veterinarians Charge

The Atlanta Veterinary Medical Society charged Thursday night that a state rabies control official has refused to furnish vaccine for a free clinic to inoculate dogs in quarantined areas of DeKalb County.

Following a called meeting of the society, Dr. W. V. Petty charged further that "some public health officials seem to be more interested in putting on a show to quiet public fears than in actually protecting the public from rabies."

Dr. Petty, who is chairman of the society's rabies committee, said DeKalb county veterinarians met with DeKalb County health officials Wednesday and agreed to hold free clinics in quarantined areas of the county with the state furnishing the serum and the veterinarians donating their services.

STALLED CLINIC

Dr. Petty said local veterinarians were prepared to hold the clinics Thursday afternoon when at the last minute they were informed that Dr. L. E. Starr, veterinarian of the state health department, refused to furnish vaccine for the clinics because he thought the clinics should cover larger areas of the county.

Dr. Starr declined to comment on the AVMS charges.

Meanwhile, Dr. Thomas O. Vinson, director of the DeKalb County Health Department, put an emergency quarantine on the movement of dogs and cats in or out of the entire north section of DeKalb and the city of Lithonia after three dogs and a cat died of rabies in these areas.

The northern quarantine area extends north of LaVista road and includes the municipalities of North Atlanta, Doraville, Chamblee, Dunwoody and Tucker.

Dr. Vinson indicated the Lithonia quarantine, now confined to the city limits, may be extended.

SAW SOLUTION

"We veterinarians have spent a great deal of time studying the problem in DeKalb County and are convinced that the planned clinics in quarantined areas would have solved the problem," Dr. Petty said.

Dr. Petty said members of the AVMS are willing to cooperate in any way possible to control rabies, but they insist that their experience and knowledge be considered by county and state officials in planning rabies control programs.

"We have agreed to free emergency clinics in quarantined areas, but we do not favor free clinics throughout the county when such clinics would draw animals from quarantined areas into rabies-free areas," Dr. Petty said.

20-Story Mart Given Go-Ahead By Joint Board

The joint Atlanta-Fulton County Board of Adjustments Wednesday gave the green light to erection of a 20-story, $11 million merchandising mart at the southwest intersection of Peachtree and Harris streets directly across from the Capital City Club.

The board approved variances in set-back parking and other requirements to permit erection of a building having 1,600,000 square feet of floor space instead of 753,090 which could have been built without the variances.

New U.S. Jet Will Fly at 2,000 m.p.h.

TYNDALL AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—The newest Air Force fighter-interceptor, the F108, will fly at a speed of 2,000 miles per hour, a spokesman disclosed Thursday.

The plane is under development by the North American Aviation Corp. It has not yet been given a name.

Newsman attending the Air Force's worldwide weapons meet at Tyndall were told at a special briefing session that the new interceptor will have a range of more than 2,000 miles and fly at an altitude in excess of 60,000 feet.

Warren E. Swanson, manager of North American's research section at Los Angeles, said the F108 one day will be able to span the United States in one hour.

Swanson said the new aircraft will provide the Air Force with an atomic missile launching platform while retaining the advantages of human direction. He said it has the capacity to make positive identification on the spot, and the capacity to attack and re-attack with destructive power. Details of its armament were not disclosed.

Annie Lou Hardy Storzas Entertain Buenos Aires Guests

Guests at Moccasin Hollow, Randall Mill road home of the Francis Storzas, are Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto Lechner, whom Mr. Storza knew in Prague years ago, but who are now living in Buenos Aires. The Lechners are en route home from a visit to New York.

Last evening they were central figures in a party at the Pennaria concert, and today their hosts will take them on a motor trip to the Smoky Mountains to see the colorful autumn foliage. Mr. Lechner, a gifted musician, plays in the Buenos Aires Symphony, and has his own quartet.

Next week the Storzas will begin packing for a European jaunt. They will fly to London around Nov. 1, and from there to Spain.

"Neither of us has ever been to Spain," said Mrs. Storza, "so we're quite excited over the trip. We plan to rent a car and drive everywhere. Then we will go on to Greece, which is a familiar country to my husband, but this will be my first trip there. We will be away about 10 weeks."

A VISITOR EXPECTED at the Haverhill drive home of the Lewis Lunsfords during the weekend is Mrs. Lunsford's cousin, Miss Allee Mitchell, recently arrived from Vietnam where she served as vice consul at Saigon.

Miss Mitchell, who is in this country for reassignment by the State Department, will come here from Washington. Later she will go to Memphis for a visit to Mrs. Lunsford's parents, the James Jacksons.

MRS. LLOYD BOWERS arrives today from Columbus to spend the weekend with her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sims Bray, in Sherwood Forest.

MRS. EDWARD M. CHAPMAN arrived in New York on Tuesday from England where she has been the guest of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Williams, at their home near London. Mrs. Chapman is now the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Ray Haskell, in Montclair, N.J., but is expected home today.

MRS. HERBERT ALDEN left yesterday for Montezuma where she was called by the critical illness of her mother, Mrs. R. S. Oliver. She is the guest there of her sister, Mrs. Fred Adams.

MEMBERS of the 436th Civil Affairs Military Government Company, USAR, are shaking moth balls out of their dress uniforms, for tomorrow evening they will gather for a formal military ball at the Hellenic Center on Cheshire Bridge road.

More than 150 officers, their wives and guests will assemble for dinner at 7 o'clock, with dancing to follow. Lt. Col. George F. Boardman, commanding officer of the unit, and Mrs. Boardman will receive the guests.

KAY WISE and her fiancé, Miles Richard Duncan III, will be central figures at a rehearsal dinner this evening at the Luau, with the latter's mother, Mrs. M. R. Duncan Jr., as hostess. The pair will be married tomorrow evening at the chapel of Jackson Hill Baptist Church.

Visitors here for the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Robert U. Wise Jr., of Thomasville; Jerry Bertram, of Palmetto, Ala.; Clara Jean Wilkerson, of Brunswick; Mrs. Gary A. Powell, of Miami; Joye Wise, of Jacksonville, and Mr. and Mrs. R. U. Wise, of Palatka, Fla.

MRS. ETHELYN REEVES STAPLETON is the guest of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pullen, and their daughter, Denise, in Rome, N.Y. Early in November the Pullens will return to Atlanta for residence.

Before their return, however, they will take their guest on a motor trip through Canada and upper New York state. En route to Atlanta, they will stop in Baltimore for a week, but Mrs. Stapleton will continue the journey by plane.

Sid Stapleton, son of Mrs. Stapleton and a freshman at Baylor University, will be escort for the queen of the Freshman Ball during home-coming there this weekend.

Those Pistol-Packing Mamas Are Passe at Today's Bridge Table

By YOLANDE GWIN

"They laughed when I sat down to play."

And that laugh was the trick that won international bridge fame for Charles Goren who has more tricks up his sleeves than the legendary Mississippi river boat gambler.

A girl laughed at Charlie Goren when he joined a bridge foursome. He was a young lawyer at the time, but now that's just part of his past. During 13 years of practice he never made more than $5,000 a year. Now he rakes in more than $150,000 playing bridge.

"That girl did laugh at me, but I'll say this, there are more women playing bridge in the nation today than ever before," said the dapper Mr. Goren during a brief visit here this week with his friends, Harry Siegel and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chanin.

"Women are wonderful players and from what I have heard there are more bridge foursomes in constant operation now than any other women's groups, you know like sewing, book clubs and the like," he said.

If this is true then, are men becoming bridge widowers as a counterpart of golf widows, he was asked.

"Good heavens, no," said Mr. Goren between bites of juicy grilled steaks served up by one of his favorite bridge playing cronies, Mr. Chanin, at an informal brunch. "The game's name certainly has a double meaning. It can really bridge the ever-widening abyss between marriage and divorce."

Of course that story about the woman who shot and killed her husband because he didn't return her lead was a "natural" to draw comment from Mr. Goren.

"Well . . ." he stammered, gulping down some coffee, "the jury did acquit her."

As far as couples playing bridge together, Mr. Goren gave it a grand slam approval.

"If a man and a woman like bridge they can be together much more than couples with diversified interests," he continued. "Bridge playing couples can accept invitations together and be together. It gives them an allied interest."

Mr. Goren, whose bridge column appears in The Constitution and some several hundred other papers with total circulation of 26 million readers, told one woman that he had "about 2,000 trophies" at his home. Even though he writes his bridge column in longhand, he has between tournaments, social playing and traveling, written bridge books which have sold 3,500,000 copies in the United States and have been translated into eight foreign languages. His books make the game simple for beginners and accurate for experts. His latest book is "Contract Bridge Complete" which was published in 1961.

Husbands and wives who have glared at each other across the bridge tables, sent up poison smoke signals because of a wrong bid or play, might be interested in what Mr. Goren said about the "home team."

"I think husbands and wives should play together and as partners, too. Those whose tempers rise would anyway, regardless of their partners. They are just human beings anyway, so what? Husbands and wives who play together a great deal are familiar with each other's playing tricks. Quite often they make a prize-winning team. I still maintain that women are wonderful players and I can say this from actual experience. Helen Sobel was my partner for 19 years and I think she is the greatest woman bridge player in history."

And what about too much bridge playing either with or without a husband (or a wife)? Do you think it is a cause for many divorces? he was asked.

"Certainly not. If a couple is headed for divorce, bridge playing won't make any difference one way or the other!" he said with a merry twinkle in his eyes.

And it was all a very interesting comment, for nice Mr. Goren is a very youngish man of 37 and a bachelor, too.

Atlanta's Small Fry Get Pink Cheese Cloth Clouds

Atlanta's small fry are coming into their own!

It's by way of a bona fide Fairyland, complete with fairy godmother and the wicked witch, thanks to the Junior Committee of the Atlanta Symphony.

The committee members are joining forces with J. P. Allen and Co. to turn the Cherokee Club into a gala scene on Tuesday, Nov. 18, as a backdrop for the social event of the year for youthful Atlantans.

There will be pink cheese cloth clouds with silver stars. There will be candy trees. And there will be a wishing well.

Highlighting the event will be hula-hoop fashion revue, with two huge golden books of the Great Fairy Stories adorning the runway. Mrs. David Sanders, as the fairy godmother, will usher the small manikins through a magic mirror, while Mrs. John Taulman as the wicked witch, watches from the opposite end.

Of course there will be a story teller, music, ice cream and cake, to say nothing of favors and prizes galore for young and old. All these things add up to the title, Symphony Spin-O-Roo.

Santa Has All the Luck! He Knows What to Give

By HARRIETTE S. WEINSTEIN

That guy Santa has all the luck! Not only does he KNOW what everyone wants for Christmas, but he also has his own private workshop where he can get exactly what he wants for each person without having to fight the crowds.

But for the hapless shopper who lacks this special insight for each person on his Christmas list and who must rely on the often crowded stores to purchase his gifts, there are still some ways to lighten the load of Christmas shopping burdens.

Mrs. Doris Montague, whose monumental task it is to advise Christmas shoppers in a large Atlanta department store, admits that Christmas shopping can be quite a task. But she has found a few simple rules that will result in pleased donors as well as receivers of gifts.

SHOP EARLY: Often advised, this little rule assures a good selection to choose from and time to get the gift packed right and delivered on time.

MAKE A LIST AND FOLLOW IT: First of all decide who is to be included on your list, what you'd like to give them, the price range you want to pay. Then consult the store's shopper for the best possible values and where the item is located. (Shopping early means she has more time to help the customer, too.)

DON'T GET SIDE-TRACKED: Instead of wandering aimlessly from counter to counter ("which only adds to your confusion," says Mrs. Montague), concentrate specifically on the items on your list.

SHOP WITH SENSE: Dress comfortably. Carry all your "tools" such as lists, addresses and gift enclosure cards, checks, cash and charge accounts.

TAKE SHORT CUTS: Use your telephone to find if the store has the item you're hunting for before you leave home. Order by phone or mail when convenient. Group items that can be bought at one department and one store together.

The most important item of all, deciding on what gift to give, is frequently the biggest problem to the shopper.

Mrs. Montague has a few suggestions along this line, too.

"For the person who has everything" she suggests something in the way of fancy foods and delicacies, reading material or unique gadgets which have just come out on the market. (The store shoppers are well informed along this line.)

"For gifts that are to be mailed" she suggests that something small (less bulky, saving on shipping charges) and unbreakable fills the bill.

WATCH ADS
And if you "just don't know what to give," Mrs. Montague says to watch the advertisements and articles in newspapers and magazines closely and look carefully through holiday catalogues, special flyers and leaflets which describe gift merchandise. Think through the interests of each person. When you come upon an idea, write it down on your list. Then add the correct size or measurements, color and style preferences and any other information which will help you buy wisely.

Remember that careful selection of gifts need not be impossible. And good choosing will be easier on your budget as well as more satisfying to the gift's receiver.

But, Mrs. Montague reminds shoppers, "It's not really so much WHAT you give that makes a truly welcome and flattering gift. It is HOW you give it."

Lady Fergusson To Aid Israel Bond Campaign

A distinguished member of a noble Scottish clan, Lady Fergusson of Kilkerran, will visit Atlanta next month in the interest of the Israel Bond Organization, according to Mrs. Morris M. Glazer, chairman of the Women's Division of the Atlanta Israel Bond Committee.

The great-niece of Lord James Arthur Balfour and a non-Jewish leader of Israeli causes in Great Britain, Lady Fergusson will be a guest of the Women's Division. She will be central figure at a tea to be held at the 15th street home of Mrs. Ben J. Massell at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 4, when she will meet with members of the Atlanta chapter of the National Sponsors of the Bond Organization.

The Sponsors, a national honor society of the Bond movement, include women who have performed outstanding service in behalf of the bond drive. A prerequisite for membership is the purchase of a minimum of $1,000 in Israel Bonds in a year. At the tea Lady Fergusson will present to the 1958 sponsors the silver pins, depicting David and his harp, which are the official insignia of the society.

On her first trip to Israel in 1948, her observations there caused her to become active in pro-Israel causes out of her own deep convictions as well as to maintain family tradition. She is national vice president

How To Write Your Own Ad

Q. My wife and I have had our little business for more than a month now. We want to do some advertising in the newspaper. Just how does one go about writing an effective advertisement? Mr. B. L. Erie, Pa.

A. The only advertising that's really expensive is the kind that doesn't sell anything. So you'll want to be sure your ads promote sales.

Advertising is a complicated business—but a small concern like yours can do a good job if you follow these simple suggestions:

1. Pick your target. Ads can sell your business by building up its prestige. Or they can sell the product you offer. But one ad can do only one of these jobs well. Don't try to do both at once.

2. Gather your facts. If you decide on the prestige ad, figure out why your business deserves respect. Back it up with facts. What makes it distinctive? What unusual or valuable policies do you follow? What advantages do you offer? If you advertise a product or service, do the same kind of fact-gathering. Write down every fact and detail about the item. List its uses, unique qualities. And state its price.

Now analyze the facts from your customers' point of view. What personal needs will this product meet? What makes it more desirable than any other product of its kind? What outstanding feature about it is most likely to arouse a customer's interest? Study this analysis.

3. Draft the body copy. Good copy has to catch a reader's attention, arouse his interest, stimulate his desire for what is advertised and nudge him into doing something about it. Try to make your copy sound like news rather than a rehash of an oft-told tale. Write as clearly and as simply as you can. Don't try to be cute or literary.

Some authorities say the headline counts for 60 per cent of an ad's effectiveness. The work you did on the body copy should have made you think about your story. As a result, the central idea of your ad should come into sharp focus. That helps in finding a headline that clicks.

'We Want You To Pray for Us While We Spray Your House'

In recent months the news has been full of murder and murder trials, of bombings and attempted bombings and hate organizations. All of these are bad and almost as reprehensible is the crime of a couple of smooth operators who have been bilked elderly and ill north Georgians of their last cent.

Before I read the story in the paper yesterday of the arrest of two men in Gainesville who posed as termite inspectors I heard of their activities or the activities of someone with a similar operation.

A friend in the mountains told me of several elderly couples whose worldly goods consisted of their old homes and either a small amount of cash painfully accumulated or old age or Social Security benefits. In each case they were visited by men who claimed to be "government inspectors"—a combination of words calculated to fill the relief or Social Security recipient with chill apprehension. After all a "government" man would have the power of life and death over them. He would be able to cut them off without a cent.

And this their visitors vowed to do if they did not raise funds necessary to rid their homes of termites, which, they assured the old folks, were chewing down their houses and menacing the surrounding area.

One family had $420 and the "government inspectors" got it all. Another had only $20. They got that, too.

Confidence men sometimes operate with impunity because their victims are embarrassed at having been so gullible. And the public generally is easy on the man who can pluck a nice fat sucker who is himself trying to get something for nothing.
But these victims were almost without exception elderly people, ill and distraught to begin with and thoroughly intimidated before the con men finished with them.

They were told first that a government wrecking crew would move in and tear down their homes if they did not buy the termite treatment. Then they would lose whatever government benefits they were receiving and moreover, they would be subject to prosecution. Terrified, the old folks shelled out.

But the crowning bit of effrontery was the report of one old lady.

The visitors saw a Bible on the table by her bed, she said, and one of them said, "We see you all are good folks who read the Bible. We read it too and we believe in prayer. We want you to pray for us while we are out there spraying your house."

According to one Gainesville dispatch the request for prayer was well made because the spray mixture going on the old shake roof was largely gasoline.

The men who were arrested in Gainesville may or may not be the guilty ones.
Superior Court convenes in Gilmer County
Monday and the grand jury will investigate the matter.

Meanwhile, it would be interesting to know what the men who took old folks' savings and sick folks' money for medicine wasted with the money. What was so needful to their twisted, grasping natures that they could use intimidation and extortion and then ask their victims to pray for them?

If psychiatrists have the privilege of examining these particular villains, I wish they would make public a report.

It's Time To Decide What To Wear to Miami

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

The wheel of fashion seems to spin with ever increasing speed—crowding one season into another.

Here it is just barely fall and already resort fashions are making their appearance in the local stores.

Currently in Atlanta is the trunk showing of Pat Premo, that California designer with a special knack for resort creations featuring superb insight into the fashion tastes of women across the country.

So, if you're lucky enough to have your wardrobe stocked for fall and winter, have your Christmas shopping well in hand, and have a vacation on your calendar, you won't want to miss this opportunity to plan ahead a season.

SOCIAL ROUND
Because Pat Premo designs for the life she lives—filled with a kaleidoscope of activities centered around family, community and social events—her collection is tuned to the same life well-dressed women everywhere live.

Fabric is her first love in designing—its consistency, its flow, its color often strikes the first spark when she creates.

In this collection there are fabrics which have been selected from much travel abroad. The majority of them are Stof-fel Swiss cottons—all cotton or sometimes threaded with silk or fine Egyptian fibers. There is also a magnificent group of Moogashel linens and Italian silk generally reserved for men's fine neckties.

DECORATIVE TRICKS
While ornaments and decorative tricks are almost never a part of any Pat Premo design, there is always a great feeling of color. Prints are especially prominent for her after-five designs. Many are taken from the paintings of the French master Paul Poiret and are masterfully reproduced on fine silks and cottons.

Typical of the Poiret print is the one-piece dress with tight midriff, full skirt and silk velvet belt. The ground is cream with prints of oranges and lemons and green leaves.

Another unusual fabric treatment is linen with a woven Sanskrit design fashioned into a three-piece suit. The line is straight with straight skirt, jacket and overblouse of white linen. The blouse buttons down the back and has a rounded collar to turn over the collarless jacket.

SOFTLY FEMINE
Softly feminine and simple is the dress of knitted rayon, linen and cotton. The bodice is fashioned from a round yoke neckline. The skirt is limmed and cinched with a new curved belt. The dress is fully crepe lined.

The shirtwaist, the sheath, the Empire, the blouson are the favorite silhouettes with emphasis on practicality in fashion.

For shopping information, call JA. 2-5050, Ext. 394, or send a self-addressed post card to the Women's Department, The Atlanta Constitution.

She Wants To Date Other Boys

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am 16 and the boy I am going with is 17. We aren't going steady officially but we don't go out with anyone else. He is very sincere, sweet and wonderful. He says he loves me and he doesn't know what he'd do if I ever went out with someone else. I know he isn't just handing me a line because he isn't that kind of person.

I like him more than any other boy but sometimes I meet a new boy whom I would like to know better. I don't feel right about this because it isn't fair to my boy friend. I just don't know—am I boy-crazy or something? He moved, a couple of weeks ago, to a town not far away, so the last time I went out with him I mentioned that maybe we should date others since we couldn't see each other so often.

He was very hurt and thought I was telling him to "hit the road," but that's the last thing I'd ever do. He said I could go out with other boys if I wanted to but he would rather stay home than date other girls.

Maybe I was wrong to say anything but I believe in being truthful and I thought he would understand. Now I don't know what to do. I know you can help me as you have helped so many others. Thank you for your advice and understanding.

You believe you could not have fun dating other boys if you knew you were hurting your present boy friend but you say, "I'm just not the going steady type." So you will have to do one of two things. One choice is to continue dating just this one boy (which I advise against under the circumstances) and risk hurting him when the day comes that you cannot keep up the pretense any longer.

Your other choice is to try to convince him that you really do want to date him whenever possible, but believe it would be wise for you both to date others as well.

Here's the TRUTH about getting a NEW VOLKSWAGEN!

THERE IS ONLY ONE SURE WAY. LOOK FOR THE VW EMBLEM!

It is the sign of an authorized Volkswagen dealer. Only an authorized VW dealer can sell a new, first-hand U.S. Model Volkswagen... the only model factory-equipped to meet American driving conditions and every State's requirements.

CHECK PARTS AND SERVICE

Only an authorized VW dealer can provide factory-approved service facilities. His mechanics are factory-trained, and are kept continuously up-to-date through the factory service-information program. At an authorized VW dealer, a complete stock of genuine factory-approved and factory-inspected parts and accessories is always available.

ASK FOR THE VOLKSWAGEN WARRANTY

Every new Volkswagen sold in the U.S. by an authorized VW dealer is covered from the minute you buy it by the factory-guaranteed warranty (six months or 6,000 miles) at no extra cost. It covers parts and labor and is good at any authorized VW dealer anywhere.

LOOK AT THE PRICE

The new, U.S. Model, first-hand DeLuxe Sedan, with American equipment—sealed beam headlights, legal safety glass, American-type bumpers and over-riders, turn signals and mile-calibrated speedometer—costs $1,545 at Port of Entry.

No. 34: Know Your CountySpanish Explorer De Soto Searched Coffee for Gold

Coffee County, in southeast Georgia, was created from parts of Clinch, Irwin, Telfair and Ware counties in 1854, the 107th in order of creation. It was named for Gen. John Coffee, an early-day Indian fighter who later represented Georgia in Congress.

Douglas, the county seat, was named for Sen. Stephen A. Douglas, the Democrat who unsuccessfully opposed Abraham Lincoln in his first race for the Presidency.

Coffee County was once a favorite hunting ground for Indians and was crossed by many Indian trails. One was Ridge Trail that led from the Ocmulgee River down to the Okefenokee Swamp and into Florida. It crosses Seventeen Mile Creek about five miles east of Douglas. During the Indian troubles of the early 19th century, a fort was erected about five miles northeast of Douglas.

Although part of the county was given to Berrien in 1856, Coffee covers 613 square miles and is the state's 12th biggest county. There were 1,979 farms in the county in 1954. The main crops are tobacco, cotton, peanuts, corn and pasture. Tobacco is the principal source of income and Coffee ranked second in Georgia tobacco production in 1955 and sixth in hog sales in 1954. Truck crops, principally watermelons and tomatoes, are important sidelines. Coffee is a large producer of pulpwood and naval stores.

Coffee County has a population of 25,800 (1957 estimate), ranking 31st in population (1950 census). Douglas has a population of 9,100 (1957 estimate). The other main town in the county is Nicholls. Main highways in the county are U.S. 441, 221 and 319, and Ga. 31, 158, 135, 149, 268, 32, 64, 107 and 206. The Satilla River flows through Coffee County.

Tomorrow: Colquitt County.

Billy GrahamIt Is Hard To See All Of Faith

QUESTION: Why do you find such differences of opinion and such strong feelings on the part of some Christians about some matter of faith and church procedures? — P. L. M.

ANSWER: The Christian faith is so great it is difficult for man to see it all. It is something like a diamond with many facets, and we see only a part of the diamond at one time. There are things about the Christian faith which are essential; there are others which are important in varying degrees but which have no bearing on one's personal salvation. There may be times when men magnify a minor point and make it a major one.

Then too the frailty and perversities of human nature may cause us to interpret certain truths from a purely human viewpoint, thereby losing their spiritual significance. While your question is interesting, let me suggest that you will be wise to look, not at the differences in the church but at the things on which historic Christianity has always agreed: the deity of our Lord, His death for our sins, His resurrection and His coming again. If we agree on the things about which the Bible is very clear, we can agree to disagree on many minor points.

New STRIPE toothpaste
WITH HEXACHLOROPHENE

- KILLS BAD BREATH GERMS
...better than any leading mouthwash!
- KILLS TOOTH DECAY GERMS
...better than any leading toothpaste!

Ask your physician or dentist about hexachlorophene. He can probably give you astonishing facts about germ-killing hexachlorophene from experience. For example: surgeons using hexachlorophene regularly need only a fraction of the time previously required to kill germs on their hands before operations! Dentists enjoy similar benefits. Hexachlorophene not only kills germs but builds up its protection to keep germs away between applications.

In Stripe toothpaste, hexachlorophene penetrates hard-to-reach places no toothbrush touches. It kills the odor and decay-causing germs that hide there—millions of such germs every other leading toothpaste or mouthwash leaves in your mouth. And Stripe, used regularly, keeps on warding off those germs between brushings! It's the only toothpaste with germ-killing hexachlorophene!

What's more, Stripe's cleanser-polisher was chosen by research scientists at one of America's leading dental universities as the finest cleanser-polisher known.

Stripe tastes as good as it looks, too. Youngsters brush oftener and longer with Stripe keeps your breath "close-up-clean."

Stripe than ever before. Safe even for the youngest child. 100% sugar-free.

Get new Stripe soon. Economy size, 69¢. Giant, 53¢. Large, 31¢.

Guarantee: The performance and quality of Stripe® Toothpaste are unconditionally guaranteed by Lever Brothers Company. Purchase price refunded if not satisfied.

NEW YORK, N. Y.

End Zone Expert

COLUMBIA, S.C.—Preliminaries are over and the main event is on. Clemson and South Carolina are squaring off for the heavyweight championship of the Palmetto State.

It's the 56th chapter in that historical football volume labeled Big Thursday, and Carolina Stadium is packed like a can of sardines during depression days. It's perfect football weather for the 45,000 customers, too hot if you happen to be wearing pads.

Outlar

Clemson won the toss and tackle Bill Jerry, a Confederate loyalist from Old Forge, Pa., is kicking off for the Gamecocks. Charlie Horne, an Atlanta who started out at Tech and wound up at Clemson, fielded the ball in the end zone, started to ground it and then dashed out to the 16.

Squire Frank Howard, attending his 19th Big Thursday skirmish as the Clemson headmaster, is dressed out in a blue serge suit. He's wearing a hat so folks won't discover the bald truth. Howard's troops are gunning for their fourth straight triumph.

Warren Giese, who lives modern but doesn't smoke, is decked out in a nifty brown suit. He has collected all the sideline weapons of football warfare. The closed TV circuit is turned on in the teepee tent; beside it is a green blackboard. There's an oxygen tank back of the bench, and the Gamecocks are ready for any emergency which doesn't happen on the field.

The Gamecocks also appear capable of coping with an emergency on the field. They are rocking and socking on even terms with the unbeaten Tigers, and it's easy to understand why this game has never failed to promote a sell-out crowd.

Coach Giese, who usually watches the game on TV, apparently prefers to see this one live. In fact, Coach Giese seems to be about the busiest man in the joint. He's busy dispatching quarterbacks into the contest, employing four different signal callers on five plays as the Gamecocks enter Clemson territory for the first time.

—Coach Howard Salutes Gamecocks

Halfback King Dixon and his playmates have hacked out a first down at the Clemson 34. Now, however, the Tigers are digging in, and taking over on the 28, and the scoreless first quarter is closing.

Coach Howard is standing in front of the Clemson bench, arms crossed, looking somewhat solemn. Quarterback Harvey White is giving Coach Howard something to smile about and the Clemson fans something to cheer about. He's got the first sustained march of the day under way. George Urry, the fine halfback from Waycross, and White are doing most of the leg work. South Carolina stacked up fullback Doug Cline, but Gamecock and Bucky Walker piled on, and Clemson has a first down at the 15. Cline and White then negotiated a first down at the 3, from where White cracked across for the TD.

Clemson elected to try for two, but White tried to run, tried to pass and then stumbled to the ground. Thus Clemson leads 6-0, after 8:42 of the second quarter.

That's plenty of time for the aroused Gamecocks to tie it. Steve Kopian hauled the kickoff back to the Carolina 24, and a Georgia boy pumped new life into the Gamecocks. Bob Farmer, a 190-pound sophomore fullback from Elberton, started ploughing into the Clemson forwards. He was the ball carrier on 6 of the 16 snaps as Carolina waded 74 yards to a TD.

Carolina required four plays to cover the last three yards, with fullback John Saunders popping in from the one. Carolina wasn't playing for a tie, but quarterback Bobby Bunch's pitch for two points missed.

Coach Howard, who had mentioned that Coach Giese wasn't much of an authority on crossing the Clemson goal, then 'lipped his hat and bowed three times as the players paraded back up the field.

The Gamecocks were determined to investigate the Clemson end zone again, and they roared to a TD from the second half kickoff. King Dixon almost went all the way on a 36-yard return to the Carolina 46. The Gamecocks did go all the way in 13 snaps. Savage running by Hawkins, Saunders, Bunch and Dixon featured the thrust. Bunch cruised the left side for the final three yards and six points, and Hawkins crashed the same distance for two more points.

—Coach Giese Becomes an Authority

Giese is becoming quite an authority on the Clemson goal line, for the Gamecocks now lead 14-6 with 8:26 remaining in the quarter. Howard didn't tip his hat and bow this time.

Nor did he bow when the Gamecocks stormed 43 yards in 11 plays early in the final quarter for their TD. Saunders covered 13 of the last 14 yards, and Dixon slammed over from the one. Bunch missed on a pitch for two more, but the Gamecocks were in complete command. A supercharged line had taken charge, and the Carolina backs and fans were living it up. They hadn't had so much to shout about since 1951, the last time Carolina promoted three touchdowns against Clemson.

The television set is out of order now, but everything else is working for Carolina. A Gamecock back, slammed out of bounds on an end sweep, crashed into the teepee and closed the shop. Coach Giese hadn't been watching anyway. He had been perched on the sidelines, enjoying every moment of the tastiest triumph of his career.

Harvey White, brilliant Clemson quarterback, wound up the game on the South Carolina bench. He was injured making a tackle shortly before the end, and coach Howard came across the field with the trainer. White walked off shortly before the gun.

Hawkins capped a 70-yard drive by barreling over from the two 1:19 from the end. Only once since 1926 have the Tigers been so soundly thrashed on Big Thursday. It was coach Giese's first verdict over Clemson, and I trust the IPTAY books are in order. Coach Giese is quite an authority on crossing the Clemson goal.

JACKET FOOTBALL

Fonts, DeLany Return at Tech; Woodruff Polishes Air Defense

By BERT PRATHER

Georgia Tech's footballers, who have a Saturday date with the aerial-minded Mustangs of Southern Methodist at Dallas, Tex., wound up home lot drills Thursday on an encouraging note.

Fullback Larry Fonts, who missed the Auburn game with a knee injury, was running full speed and halfback Joe DeLany, the senior kicking ace who was dismissed from Wednesday's practice with an ankle injury, was back in togs Thursday but was limited to role of "observer."

Although Joe's wound appeared to be far less serious than when he limped off the field Wednesday, coach Bobby Dodd wasn't taking any chances and ordered him just to watch the final workout.

While DeLany can get around at almost normal speed, it will not be known until Saturday whether he'll kick with his usual effectiveness. He's the Jackets' quick-kicking sharpie and Dodd wants everything possible done to get him ready for the Mustangs.

No one touched the hip bruised in the Notre Dame game and which has kept him out of the last two SMU contests.

Coach Bill Meek said, "If we had been playing Georgia Tech today, I wouldn't have used him. But he has two more days, and if he improves as much as he has the last two, then there is a possibility he will play some Saturday."

The Tech coaching staff remembers last year when Dave Sherer, the nation's leading kicker, booted for a 50.3 average as the Mustangs managed a 0-0 tie on rain-soaked Grant Field despite the fact that Tech piled up 215 net yards rushing to SMU's 63 and COLUMBIA, S.C. — Warren Giese, his first Big Thursday victory packaged and delivered, was beside himself.

"What can you say except it was a magnificent effort. I guess the best in my three years here.

"We had confidence we could win it when we went in at half-time. Our kids felt they were in better shape than Clemson and could come out and do the job in the second half."

He paused for breath.

"Individual standouts? How can you pick an individual out of a game like that. They were all terrific. Bobby Bunch called a tremendous game, and the running of Alex Hawkins, King Dixon and John Saunders was tremendous. I think they showed ATHENS—When Georgia's Homecoming Bulldogs fall out on Sanford Stadium's turf to meet Kentucky's visiting Wildcats Saturday, four products of Atlanta area prep schools will be in the starting lineup, a senior, a junior and two sophomores.

Mike Anderson

The fall junior prepped at Decatur High under the tutelage of Frank Jones.

Further evidence of the metropolitan area schools contribution to the 1958 Bulldogs will be obvious when the Georgia second unit moves in for relief.

Thus, seven of the top 22 Bulldogs began their football playing days in or around Atlanta.

A run-down in the line-ups show that the Bulldogs, overall, outweigh the Wildcats by 1.8 pounds a man.

The Georgia backfield averages out at 182 pounds, while the huge Wildcats tip the scales at 193 pounds a man.

Both squads are nearly identical so far as experience is concerned, with a very slight edge going to Georgia.

Gamecocks Grind Tigers Under, 26-6

South Carolina Line, Saunders Pin First Defeat on Clemson

By AL THOMY

Constitution Sports Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Warren Giese's particular brand of control football controlled everything about Big Thursday as South Carolina stunned Clemson, 26-6, before 45,000.

Previously undefeated Clemson was just another football team on this beautiful afternoon as Giese shifted from his halfback offense to a quarterback-fullback emphasis; and his Gamecocks virtually wedged the Tigers out of Carolina Stadium.

The 45,000 came to see a close game, and many leaned toward the nation's No. 10 team from the western hills of the state. Instead, the 45,000 watched a physically stronger Gamecock crew push Frank Howard's Tigers from one end of the field to the other.

In John Saunders, a 210-pound human tank, the Gamecocks put on display one of the most vicious plungers in the country—at least on this day. He handled the ball 19 times and rushed for 69 yards, but the total does not reflect the value of human piston.

He got the tough yardage to keep drives going; he scored one touchdown on personal effort alone; he blocked as a man possessed and he tackled as only an inspired man tackles.

Quarterback Bobby Bunch, called the weak link in South Carolina's chain of offense, ran 18 times for 61 yards, scored on a brilliant sweep, picked out a glaring Clemson defensive weakness on the left side and never lost the confidence and respect of his men. He passed only three times, but one set up the first touchdown.

To Clemson's credit, Howard's men never quit, never lost the poise that has characterized comeback victories over Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and Vanderbilt.

This afternoon the breaks went the other way, and South

WINS BY LANDSLIDE OVER RIGNEY

Bucs' Danny Murtaugh Pilot of Year in Majors

NEW YORK (AP)—As if there were any doubts about it, the voters in the Associated Press poll have made the selection official. Danny Murtaugh is Major League Manager of the Year.

The man who piloted the Pittsburgh Pirates to second place in the National League race after they generally had been picked to finish seventh or eighth was a landslide choice of the sportswriters and sportscasters taking part in the balloting.

He received 149 votes. Bill Rigney of the San Francisco Giants, in second place, was first choice of six voters; Fred Haney of the National League champion Milwaukee Braves and Casey Stengel of the world champion New York Yankees each received five nominations; Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, four, and Jimmy Dykes, who finished the season as Cincinnati Redleg manager; Harry Craft of Kansas City, and Joe Gordon, who took over as pilot of the Cleveland Indians late in June, one each.

Rigney was the second choice on 71 ballots, Stengel on 22, Lopez 16, Murtaugh 15, Gordon 11, Craft 3, Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto of the Washington Senators 2, and Bob Scheffing of the Chicago Cubs, 1.

Murtaugh has the added distinction of being the first manager to be chosen on a ballot which encompassed the managers in both leagues. Previously the Associated Press poll selected a manager for each league. Last year Lopez was the choice in the American League, and Haney, who gave Milwaukee its first World Series title, was the National League selection.

MANAGER—AND FATHER—OF THE YEAR, PIRATE DANNY MURTAUGH

It was Murtaugh's first full season as a major league manager. He had succeeded Bobby Bragan as Pirate pilot Aug. 3, 1957, with the team in last place.

Murtaugh could be classed as the "do as I say, not as I did" type of manager. He was no great shakes as a player himself. In 707 games with Philadelphia, Boston and Pittsburgh his batting average was an anemic .254.

His minor league managing career also was unimpressive, if winning pennants is the symbol of success. He finished fifth in both 1932 and 1933 at New Orleans; was second there in 1934 and finished last with Charleston, W. Va., in the American Assn. in 1935.

Murtaugh, advised of his designation as Manager of the Year, said at his Woodland, Pa., home:

"Actually, a manager doesn't have too much to do with where his team finishes. The players do, and this honor should have gone to them.

"A majority of the players reached their expected potential this past season and that is why we finished as high as we did. I think a lot of the rival clubs will worry about us next year."

Lauder's Return Supplies Zip To Auburn's Outside Attack

Fastest Back Faces Terps

By MICKEY LOGUE

Auburn's fastest football horse returns to the track against Maryland.

An injury received before the Tennessee opener has limited sprinter Bobby Lauder to 30 seconds of halfback service this season.

He appeared briefly against Chattanooga, but had to go back on the sidelines as his leg wound worsened.

Trainer Kenny Howard's Thursday announcement that the 5-11, 170-pound junior is again available was cause for mild jubilation in the Tiger camp.

Offensively, Lauder's blazing speed forms a tremendous outside threat, assuring that enemy defenses must play it looser and not jam the middle against Auburn's fullback thrusts. He also is a dangerous pass catcher.

Defensive Coach Hal Herring rates Lauder among the finest secondary prospects in the Southeastern Conference. His fleet feet provide rapid interception of opposing air missions, and he doesn't mind sticking a shoulder to rival ball carriers.

Lauder promoted 7.5 yards per freshman carry, and streaked for 88 yards in 11 sophomore attempts, a flat 8.9 rate.

He swiped two passes in clutch situations.

After proving himself Auburn's No. 1 dash man last spring, Lauder pulled a muscle and missed the track campaign. Then with second unit football duty virtually a certainty, he hurt a knee this fall.

His mid-season arrival furnishes badly-needed assistance for Lamar Rawson and Jimmy Laster.

Above all, Lauder adds velocity to the Tiger attack, still minus fleet fullback Ronnie Robbs and quarterback Bryant Harvard.

PLAIN FACTS—Lloyd Nix remains a highly doubtful performer against the Terps. If at all possible, Coach Ralph Jordan probably will avoid employing the crafty quarterback. . . . Junior John Kern has grabbed the offensive reins in fine practice style, and 6-5 Richard Wood has impressed with the second troops.

Harvard's broken leg surrendered its cast Thursday, but the Thomasville junior is out for the season. . . . Four thousand tickets are left for the Terp scrap, 30,000 already being sold. . . . Maryland, rated No. 1 in the nation, edged a lightly-regarded Auburn team, 13-7, in 1952. The third- and fifth-ranked Tigers are wary of similar resistance from the oft-buffed invaders.

St. Louis Names Katt a Coach

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Catcher Ray Katt, will serve as bullpen coach for the St. Louis Cardinals for the 1959 season, the club announced Thursday.

Manager Solly Hemus' staff now includes Johnny Keane, Harry Walker and Katt, 31, who spent most of the 1958 season at Rochester, batting .285.

Birdie Next Milwaukee President?

Tebbetts Subs For Joe Cairnes

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Birdie Tebbetts, the Milwaukee Braves' newly hired executive vice president, emerged Thursday as heir apparent to the presidency of the multi-million-dollar baseball empire.

President Joe Cairnes left no doubt that the ex-Cincinnati Redlegs' manager would be in full charge of the organization while Cairnes is in Florida overseeing a 500-million-dollar housing project for Braves' owner Lou Perini.

Cairnes told a press-radio-TV luncheon at which Tebbetts was introduced that he (Cairnes) would be devoting more and more time to the construction business and "maybe in a matter of years Birdie will be president of the ball club."

With Tebbetts at his side, Cairnes said the Florida project would probably take 10 years of his time. "Six or seven at least," he said, "if we expedite matters."

"Birdie'll head up the organization in my absence," Cairnes asserted. "He'll be responsible for it. Any trade must have the approval of the president or the executive vice president in the absence of the president."

Cairnes, Tebbetts—who resigned as manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs before the end of the season.

Tar Heel Drivers Roll In Force at Lakewood

Petty, Wellborn and Johnson Head 20 North Carolinians

It's North Carolina against the nation this weekend at Lakewood Speedway as NASCAR pulls the curtain on the 1958 racing season.

Twenty Tar Heels have entered the sweepstakes race which finds 41 drivers seeking the largest assigned purse ($12,500) ever distributed at the Atlanta track.

In addition to such well-known drivers as Lee Petty, Bob Wellborn and Junior Johnson, some other Smoky Mountain chauffeurs will be High Point's Tommy Irwin, Doug Cox, Shep Langden and Ken Rush; Red Springs' Roy Tyner; Thomasville's Harvey Hedge; Greenville's Joe Eubanks and Charlotte's Bobby Keck and Tiny Lund.

Georgia is next in number of entries with six. Tennessee and Virginia have three each; South Carolina, Maryland and Texas two each and Florida, Iowa and Washington, D.C., one each.

All of the drivers for the show that begins with time trials Saturday from noon to 4 p.m. are aiming for one goal. Which is, of course, the $1,900 first prize money.

Forty fastest qualifiers Saturday line up Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock for the 150-mile feature which pits the best of both the grand national and convertible divisions against each other.

Preceding the finale is a 12-entry sports car race of 15 miles which begins at 1 p.m.

Results of the sweepstakes race will have no bearing on the grand national or convertible championships. Randleman, N.C.'s Petty, the 47-year-old pappy whose son, Richard, 22, also is driving in the race, has the grand national championship locked up. And Greensboro, N.C.'s Bob Wellborn has iced the convertible cake.

Fastest time trial Saturday will be worth $100, second fastest $50 and so on down the ladder.

THE RECORD SHOWS that the modern Southland has what it takes to attract new, job-providing industries of all kinds.

During the ten-year period, 1948-1957, there were 3,299 major industrial developments along our lines alone—an average of more than one and one-fourth each working day for this period. These new developments just in the past six years represent a total investment of almost $3.5 billion and have created more than 119,000 jobs that didn't exist before.

All in the South can be proud of this fine record. Yet, this is no time to sit back and "rest on our oars." Now more than ever—in these times of lessened business activity everywhere—it behooves all who live and work in the Southland to make an extra effort to keep new, job-creating industries heading South and make sure that they stay happy in their "new home."

The more we all do to help continue without let-up the amazing industrial growth of the Southland, the more we all will benefit.

Jordan Leads Reb Onslaught;
Rakestraw Injury Hurts Owls

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Brown High's football Rebels tore a page from the Yankees' World Series script Thursday night at Cheney Stadium, shooting down the West Fulton Owls, 32-6, with a barrage of "home runs."

It was a 7-6 ball game with one minute and 11 seconds left in the first half. But that's when the Johnny Rebs began hitting the long ball, and they won going away.

In a way, Coach Jack Peek's boys were taking unfair advantage of Jack Hogg's Owls. The Bankhead Highwaymen had lost their own big "homer hitter," Larry Rakestraw, by injury in the first quarter. Rakestraw suffered a possible wrist fracture and probably will be sidelined for the season.

But Eddie Jordan, Brown's "homer guy," was having himself a night and it is doubtful that even Rakestraw could have curbed the West Enders' bid for their fifth victory in seven outings and continued leadership of the City League's Western Division.

After the dangerous Owls pulled to within a single point of the Rebels with 1:11 left in the half, Jordan was shocked into quick, decisive action. It took him and two collaborators only 57 seconds to supply a touchdown that sent them to the halftime rest with a 13-6 edge. Jordan, who had misfired on his only four flings up until then, hit end Bob Baggett with a 22-yarder, then cut loose with a 50-yard-in-the-air gem that nailed Bobby Reiley for a touchdown. Reiley made a great catch on the five and raced across on the 41-yard play.

Most of the third quarter was spent before Jordan cocked his arm again. But when he did, it was a "homer." Mickey Babb, big end, latched onto a Jordan heave on the 35 and outsped a pursuer across the double stripes on a 65-yard play. That made it 19-6.

That was the ball game, but the Rebels were not through. They traveled 83 yards, mostly by land and mostly on the flying heels of Joel Milligan, early in the fourth quarter. Second-stringer Milligan, who ripped 73 yards on five lugs, had runs of 13, 40 and 10 on the surge. Reiley stormed the final 10 around end and it was 25-0.

Bobby Mims intercepted a West Fulton pass and ran it back to the Owl 25 only two plays later. Subs Buddy King and Richard Walton promptly got into the home run act with a 25-yard pass collaboration for the final TD.

Brown drove 66 yards to take a 7-0 lead in the first quarter. David Anderson, whose 27-yard ramble was the big gainer, banged across from two years out and Jordan toed the extra point.

After Rakestraw was hurt, his sub, Allen Kennedy, came in and turned in a remarkable passing job to cut the margin to 7-6 in the second go-round. Kennedy hit Mike Holston, Eguen Smith, Travis Hames and Gene Holcomb with strikes that accounted for all 81 yards of the drive. Smith made a sensational catch and run on a 14-yard play that accounted for the TD.

End Bob Baggett, guard Wayne Harper and tackle Terry Scott were sore-thumb stickouts in a Rebel line that gave the Owls little chance to get started.

Pius X Socks Avondale Bees

A point-after touchdown plunge by Ron Heavey gave St. Pius X a 7-6 come-from-behind victory over the Avondale B team Thursday night at Avondale. Harvey Wysong scored Pius' touchdown on a 12-yard keeper, and Lou Wiley got the Avondale score on an eight-yard run.

Tech's fullback brigade, which could be in for heavy duty since coach Dodd has said he'll strive for ball control in an attempt to slow down the high-powered Methodist offense, will find sophomore Marvin Tebbetts, who was moved from quarterback, spelling Fonts on the defensive group. Lester Simerville, who came off the injured list to play 45 minutes in the 7-7 tie with Auburn, is in top shape and will work with Braselton's offensive troops. Lester's replacement is Charlie Middlebrooks, a light but speedy junior who was knocked out early in the Auburn game.

registered 14 first downs to three for the Methodists.

Sherer has been out with injury since the opener with Ohio State, but is due to return Saturday for the Jacket visit. With DeLany and Gerald Burch available, the Jackets could hold their own with Sherer this time.

Thursday's work again stressed pass defense.

The Ponies from Dallas throw slightly more than 50 per cent of the time, so it figures defensive backfield coach Lew Woodruff hopes to leave nothing undone in preparing his charges for the SMU aerial attack.

The Jackets also polished up their own bomb sights. Quarterbacks Fred Braselton, Doug Veazey and Walter Howard were the gunners and were on target with regularity.

the skeptics that we are a good football team."

There were no fears in Clemson dressing quarters.

"They were just ready to play and we weren't," said Coach Frank Howard. "They hit with authority and we didn't respond."

"I thought Bunch and Saunders hurt us the most in the backfield. . . . They didn't run anything that we hadn't prepared for. It was just a case of them wanting to win more than we did."

A pause for reflection, then:

"The loss is the best thing that's happened to me. Now I think we'll come back and win the next five. My boys will bounce back. Their heads aren't down."

Howard said quarterback Harvey White, injured in the fourth quarter, should be ready for Wake Forest next week.

That's the story of Big Thursday, 1958. South Carolina wanted to win a little more than Clemson.

SIDELINES: Center and alternate captain Dwight Keith, an Atlantan, typified the Gamecock performance. He played perhaps his finest game—in fact, it was a day for Georgians in South Carolina. End Buddy Mayfield, another Atlantan, caught a key pass, and fullback Bob Farmer of Elberton was a terror for the Gamecocks. Halfback George Urry of Waycross was steady for Clemson despite a shoulder injury in the third quarter. He played without a whimper.

Rugged Gamecocks Rip Clemson, 26-6 a shoulder injury in the fourth quarter did he quit.

Turning point, if there's any such thing, came in the third quarter when a clipping penalty short-circuited a Clemson drive on the S.C. 32 with the Gamecocks leading 14-6. The Tigers never came close again.

So many words written and yet none on the real heroes in this, the 56th Big Thursday. It was up front that the game was won, in the line where the knocking was ferocious and decisive. South Carolina forwards moved the Tigers back—and back—with unvarnished force, and they worked as a unit.

Saunders, Bunch, Alex Hawkins and King Dixon ate up plenty of real estate, but it was only after the bulldozers had cleared the area for them.

Both teams made threatening glances in the first quarter, and the point-making started after a 13-yard kick by Dixon in the opening minutes of the second.

White pushed his mates 51 yards in 11 plays. A piling-on penalty set the Tigers up at the 15. White and fullback Doug Cline pushed to the three, and White whirled and curled up over the goal. An attempted pass failed for the two-pointer, and it was 6-0 with 8:42 remaining in the period.

The tide began to turn and Georgia—pardon, South Carolina, punched 76 yards for the equalizer. Fullback Bob Farmer of Elberton, Ga., ripped 24 yards in five rushes to launch the SC rocket.

Key play, however, was a 26-yard pass from Bunch to Atlantan Buddy Mayfield, playing lonesome end on the 12.

Saunders hurdled over from the one, though Tigers argued he had been stopped dead. The omnipresent Bunch ran over two points, but a clipping penalty nullified it and the second try failed when Atlantan Mike Dukes batted down a pass.

After intermission, the Gamecocks showed this was their day by following Bunch, Saunders and Hawkins 64 yards for a score. Needing nine yards on third down, Bunch kept the drive alive with 10 around end.

Working on Clemson right end Wyatt Cox, Bunch circled him for the score from the three. Hawkins plunged for two, and it was 14-6 with 8:26 left in the third quarter.

Two touchdowns in the fourth period added insult to injury. Dixon plunged from the one to cap a 43-yard push, and Hawkins went over from the two at the end of 78 hard yards just 1:19 from the end. Big gainer was Alex' own 19-yard gallop to midfield.

The 20-point margin was Clemson's second worst defeat in Big Thursday since 1926.

Gordon Beats Briarcliff Team

Ronnie Thomas zipped to three touchdowns as Gordon High School defeated Briarcliff, 25-6, Thursday night at Southwest DeKalb. Thomas ran 35, 21 and 10 yards, had touchdown assistance from Stanley Logan on a 41-yarder. Allen Montgomery got Briarcliff's six-pointer from three yards out. Don Osborne, 110-pound Gordon guard, sparkled defensively.

Gordon . . . 6 13 4 0-23
Briarcliff . . . 0 9 0 0-6
Gordon Scoring: TDs—Thomas 3 (35, 21, sweep); 18, rush; Logan (41, sweep). PAT—Logan (run).
Briarcliff Scoring: TDs—Montgomery (3, run).

Flu Abates At Kentucky

From Press Dispatches

Lowell Hughes and Charles Sturgeon, two Cats who reportedly were combating the flu, Thursday took part in Kentucky's final warmup for the clash with Georgia Saturday.

Hughes and Sturgeon both were in uniform as the Wildcats put special emphasis on kicking in an hour-long drill. They said they "still felt weak," though.

Other reported flu victim, end Tom Rodgers, was absent from practice.

Business Group May Save Vols

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A group of 25 businessmen decided Thursday to step in and see if they could keep Southern Association baseball here.

The group appointed a seven-man committee to negotiate with owner Ted Murray for the purchase of Sulphur Dell baseball park and Nashville's franchise in the Class AA league.

Murray is asking $200,000 for the ball park, franchise and players owned by the club. He gave the committee an option to buy to Nov. 15.

Mixed Market Stops Downfalls

Rails, Steels Aircrafts Gain;
Volume Up to 3,610,000

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market broke a string of declining markets and ended mixed on increased activity Thursday.

Rails, steels, aircrafts and to-baccos advanced but chemicals and metals declined. Airlines displayed a mixed trend, as did retail merchandise issues.

Trading expanded. The ticker lagged behind floor transactions briefly at the opening. There was another burst of activity at the close.

1,301 ISSUES
Volume for the day was 3,610,000 shares compared with 3,500,000 Wednesday. Of 1,301 issues traded, 474 advanced and 497 declined. New highs for the year totaled 86 and new lows 5.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 30 cents to $197.80 with the industrials down 60 cents, rails up $2.10 and utilities unchanged.

The fact that the combined average of 60 stocks gained while a larger number of stocks declined than advanced was because Northern Pacific is among the stocks in the rail average.

5 POINTS
This stock soared 5 points as directors declared a 20 per cent stock dividend and announced the road intends to maintain the current $2 annual dividend on the increased shares.

This helped other rails. Great Northern gained 1½, New York Central ¾, Southern Pacific ¾ and Illinois Central ¾. Rails also were helped by the rise in freight car loadings to a new 1958 peak in the latest week for the sixth week in a row.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange. Volume totaled 1,130,000 shares compared with 1,070,000 Wednesday. Fairchild Camera gained ¼ and Mesabi Iron 3¼.

Corporate bonds advanced and U.S. governments were mostly firm.

Most Grains Finish Lower

CHICAGO, (AP)—Bearish influences continued to plague the grain markets and most Board of Trade futures finished lower.

Only rye demonstrated strength, ending with gains of up to more than a cent after advancing more than two cents a bushel at one time.

Wheat rallied for a brief period late in the session when all contracts were up fractions from Wednesday's closes, but then declined in the final minutes of trading.

Corn and soybeans again were affected by selling and good weather for harvesting and conditioning the crops. Receipts of corn at Chicago, while smaller than earlier in the week, still were considered very high. Demand was slow.

The U.S. Census Bureau reported soybean crushings during September totaled 25,065,000 bushels, about 6,555,000 bushels less than were crushed last month. Total crushings for the season were 352,803,000 bushels compared with 315,935,000 bushels the previous season.

Pick a Pie to Please; Put Dinner in the Pink

By VIRGINIA DYSAARD
Constitution Food Editor

Pie time is any time there are hungry mouths sitting around the dinner table.

Spring, summer, fall or winter—each one has its seasonal pie, but there are some kinds that are for all year around.

Mince meat pies are thought of for Christmas just as pumpkin is for Thanksgiving, but almond butterscotch pie fills the bill right now and will fill it six months from now.

This favorite nut of connoisseurs is featured in a new crust, grated almonds, butter and sugar packed into a pie pan and baked to a chewy crisp texture. The filling is as easy as scrambling eggs, and the whipped cream and roasted almond halves make a pretty trim to set off the pie.

One of these pies is sure to fit into the scheme of things in your house, if not today, perhaps tomorrow or next week. It's good business to be in the pie business.

ALMOND BUTTERSCOTCH CRUST:

1 cup unblanched almonds
1/2 cup granulated sugar
3/4 cup melted butter or margarine

FILLING:

1 tblsp. butter or margarine
2/3 cup brown sugar (packed)
1/2 cup hot water
1 enrtip. plain gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
1 tsp. vanilla 1/4 tsp. salt
1 pint vanilla ice cream
Whipped cream
Halved blanched almonds

Crust: Grate almonds or grind, using fine blade of food chopper. Combine with sugar and butter, and blend well. Pack firmly into sides and bottom of buttered 9-inch pie pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes, until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling: Melt butter in small saucepan. Add brown sugar, and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is melted. Slowly add hot water, and stir until all of sugar is dissolved. Soften gelatin in cold water, and dissolve in hot syrup. Add salt. Cool slightly, then add ice cream in spoonfuls.

Stir until completely melted. Blend in vanilla. Cool until mixture mounds on spoon. Turn into cooled almond crust, and chill until firm. Garnish with whipped cream and halved roasted blanched almonds. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

(This pie is best eaten the day it is made. The crust is not as crisp if it stands with the filling overnight.)

KAFFEE KUCHEN

COFFEE CAKE:

1 pkg. or 1 cake compressed or dry yeast
1/2 cup lukewarm water
1/2 cup scalded milk
3/4 tsp. salt 1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
2 1/2 to 3 cups sifted enriched flour
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup raisins
1 cup rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked)

FILLING:

Cherry preserves
Peach preserves

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and shortening; stir occasionally until shortening melts. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup of flour and beaten egg. Add softened yeast, raisins and oats. Add enough flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas and knead until satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl and brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out on lightly floured board or canvas. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough into 2 parts; round each part into a ball. Roll one part into an oval 13x8 inches. Place on greased cookie sheet. Roll remaining dough into 1 long rope and 6 shorter ropes. Place long rope around rim and make a lattice top with the other 6. Brush lightly with melted shortening; cover and let rise until double in size, about 30 minutes.

Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 40 minutes. Brush ropes with confectioners' sugar glaze; fill squares with cherry and peach preserves. Makes one coffee cake.

PIE WITH A DEFINITE PARTY FLAVOR
Made of Chocolate and Topped With Whipped Cream and Nuts

Pie for the Hostess Famous for Dessert

A good cook is always on the lookout for a "specialty of the house" and this chocolate fudge pie could well become just that. It can also add to the fame of a hostess who has a flair for distinctive desserts.

The chocolate filling is moist and tender, almost cake-like in texture, and when given the party air with scalloped edges of pastry it's a picture of elegance. Bake till the filling is puffed across the top, then cool for serving with generous mounds of whipped cream and a garnish of nuts or a cherry.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE PIE:

3/4 cup butter 1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup sugar 2 egg yolks
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1/2 cup sifted flour
1/4 tsp. salt 2 egg whites
1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell
1/2 cup sweetened whipped cream

2 tblsp. chopped pecan meats
Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and blend. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each. Add melted chocolate and mix well. Then add flour and blend.

Beat egg whites with salt until stiff, but not dry. Fold in chocolate mixture. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 30 minutes, or until pie is completely puffed across top. Cool. Spread with whipped cream and sprinkle with pecan meats.

WISH-BONE CHEESE DRESSING

Absolutely chock-full of zesty BLUE CHEESE blended with Roquefort! For salads, dips, or over hot baked potatoes!

Chocolate Is What's On Top

Chocolate is America's favorite flavor, so what's more welcome than a chocolate upside-down cake? It's a cake in a shake of a lamb's tail. Pour the delicious semisweet chocolate mixture into the bottom of the pan. Gently pour on the batter. And so to bake, frosting and all. When the cake is baked, there's no frosting to make.

First and foremost, it's a timesaver. But you couldn't get a better idea if you took twice as long to bake a cake. The baked-on frosting is chewy and chocolaty, just what people like best. Use candylike morsels of semisweet chocolate to work this magic. They're the same pieces used to make Chocolate Chip Cookies just as they originated at the Toll House Inn at Whitman, Mass.

FUDGE FROST 'n' BAKE CAKE
Preheat oven as cake mix label directs. Melt over hot (not boiling) water; one 6-ounce package (1 cup) semisweet chocolate morsels. Remove from heat.

Add and stir till smooth: 1/4 cup sweetened condensed milk, 2 tablespoons water, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Line bottom and sides of baking dish 12x8x2-inches, each way, with double thicknesses of waxed paper. Pour in semisweet mixture. Then prepare 1 package white or yellow cake mix according to label directions. Pour gently over semisweet mixture.

BRAZIL NUT APPLE SALAD
2 cups sliced unpeeled apple
1/4 cup sliced celery
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup chopped Brazil nuts
Salad greens

Mix together apple, celery and mayonnaise. Turn onto greens in salad bowl. Top with Brazil nuts. Just before serving, toss lightly. Yield: 4 servings.

BRAZIL NUT FISH FILLET ROLLS

1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 tbsps. finely chopped onion
2 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
1/4 cup chopped Brazil nuts
1/4 cup finely diced celery
2 tbsps. chopped parsley
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
3 tbsps. water
6 fish fillets (about 1 1/4 lbs.)

Melt butter in skillet; add onion and cook until onion is tender, but not brown. Add bread crumbs, Brazil nuts, celery, parsley and seasonings. Cook, stirring constantly, about 5 minutes over medium heat. Add water; stir with fork. Spread stuffing over each fillet. Roll and skewer or tie securely. Place in shallow pan and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes, or until tender. Remove skewers or string. Serve with "Brazil Nut Sauce." Makes 6 servings.

"BRAZIL NUT SAUCE"

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup sliced Brazil nuts
2 tbsps. lemon juice
Melt butter in skillet over low heat. Add Brazil nuts and cook slowly 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Add lemon juice, heat.

Lamb Takes On Special Taste The French Way

French restaurants have a way with lamb that makes it taste extra special. They roast it at about 325 degrees and allow about 30 minutes roasting time per pound.

About an hour before the time is up, they sprinkle it with a mixture of 1 clove of garlic pulverized with 1 teaspoon of salt, 1/4 cup of finely chopped parsley, 1/4 cube of butter or margarine and 1 cup of fine bread crumbs, and then let it finish roasting. The crumbly toast, the garlic permeates and all's well with the lamb.

DOES GETTING UP NIGHTS MAKE YOU FEEL OLD?

NEW YORK—Special: Thanks to new, scientific laboratory formulation, thousands of men and women now escape feeling old, tired, irritable and depressed from losing sleep and worrying about "Bladder Weakness"—too frequent, "burning and itching" urination, bed wetting, Getting Up Nights—or Strong, Chronic Urine, due to common Kidney or Bladder Irritations, which often result in secondary Backache, Headache and Nervousness. In such cases New Improved OTCHEK usually gives quick, calming relief by combating irritating nerve in acid urine; and by relaxing, analgesic pain relief. Safe for young or old. Dunk Lobster First, Then Sauce, Grill

Some outdoor cooks like to give lobster tails a quick dunk in boiling salted water before removing the meat from the shells and skewering for grilling over charcoal. A sauce of melted butter, lemon juice and crushed garlic makes a fine sauce with which to brush the lobster during the grilling and to use as an eating dip.

Pick Easiest Way Out of the Kitchen

There is an easier way of measuring shortening than packing it into a measuring cup. If you need 1/4 cup of shortening, fill a 1 cup measuring utensil with 3/4 cup of cold water; then drop in enough shortening to bring the water up to the 1 cup measurement. Pour out the water, and you're all set.

NO MORE "TUNNELED" MUFFINS!

Calumet's even-rising action promises perfect texture every time!

Long, narrow holes, or "tunnels," spell muffin failure. But Calumet spells "success" for muffins, perfect texture for cakes, too. The secret is Calumet's exclusive even-rising action... controlled action that promises "just right" rising in the bowl and in the oven.

Calumet spells double freshness, too... freshness doubly sealed in—by the metal can, and by the inner seal (with the handy "measuring edge" for easy, even measuring). Just another reason why women have made Calumet their favorite baking habit for nearly 70 years!

CALUMET MUFFINS
2 cups sifted flour • 1/4 teaspoon salt
2 1/4 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
2 tablespoons sugar • 1 egg, well beaten
3/4 cup milk • 1/2 cup melted shortening
Sift together sifted flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Combine egg and milk and add to dry ingredients. Add melted shortening; mix just to dampen flour.
Spoon into greased muffin pans, filling two-thirds full. Bake in hot oven (400°F) about 25 minutes. Makes 10 large muffins.
For Date Muffins, add 1 cup finely cut dates to the flour mixture in above recipe.

Chilled Dessert
For Real Treat

Add 1 cup milk to 2 cups of cooked white rice. Cover and cook over a low heat until the milk is absorbed, but the rice is creamy. Stir frequently. Remove from the heat and allow to stand covered, 10 minutes. Stir in 1/2 cup sugar and 1/2 cup slivered almonds which have been toasted in a 350-degree oven about 15 minutes. Cool. Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sprinkle about 2 cups banana slices with 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Gently stir into the rice.

Cover and chill in the refrigerator until time to serve. Just before serving whip some cream until stiff. Sweeten. Serve over the dessert or fold in if desired.

NEW DESSERTS CAN BE MADE GRANDMOTHER'S STYLE Feather Light Jelly Rolls Are Made Today as Yesterday

NEW DESSERTS

From An Old Baking Pan

Desserts with a touch of newness or even main course dishes can be made in the modern version of one of Grandmother's favorite baking pans. It measures 15 1/2"x10 1/2"x1".

Grandma called hers a jelly roll pan, but she too used it several times a week preparing meals for her hungry family.

FEATHER JELLY ROLL

2 eggs 1 cup sugar
2 tbsps. cold water
1 cup sifted cake flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla 1/2 tsp. salt

Line bottom, sides of pan with waxed paper. Beat eggs until thick. Beat sugar in gradually. Add water, vanilla; beat. Sift flour, baking powder, salt together; add all at one time. Beat only until smooth. Pour into 15 1/2"x10 1/2"x1" pan. Bake 12-15 minutes in moderate oven 375 degrees. While cake is baking, sprinkle towel with confectioners' sugar.

When cake is done, remove from oven; loosen edges; turn at once upside down on towel. Quickly peel off paper. Spread at once with jam or jelly; roll up; wrap in towel until cool. To use special fillings, roll up plain jelly roll right after baking; let cool; unroll; spread with filling; re-roll.

LOTS O' CRUST MEAT PIE

Cook one medium diced onion in melted fat until soft and slightly browned. Combine onion with cubed cooked meat and cooked potatoes. Add leftover cooked vegetables such as peas, carrots, string beans; blend together with left-over gravy. Pour into 15 1/2"x10 1/2"x1" pan. Top with pie crust or baking powder biscuits. Bake 20-25 minutes in 425 degrees oven or until mixture is bubbly and crust is browned.

CHOCOLATE NUT ROLL

1/2 cup sugar
4 egg yolks, beaten
1 tsp. vanilla
6 tbsps. sifted cake flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted

Line bottom, sides of pan with waxed paper. Beat egg whites stiff. Fold sugar in gradually. Fold in egg yolks, vanilla. Sift flour, baking powder, salt together. Fold gradually into egg-sugar mixture. Add chocolate; blend gently until thoroughly mixed. Pour into 15 1/2"x10 1/2"x1" pan; spread evenly. Bake 12-13 minutes in hot oven 400 degrees. When done, remove from oven; loosen edges; turn upside down on towel sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Peel off paper.

Spread with fluffy white frosting or marshmallow cream; roll up; cover with towel; cool. Frost with chocolate butter cream icing or chocolate fudge.

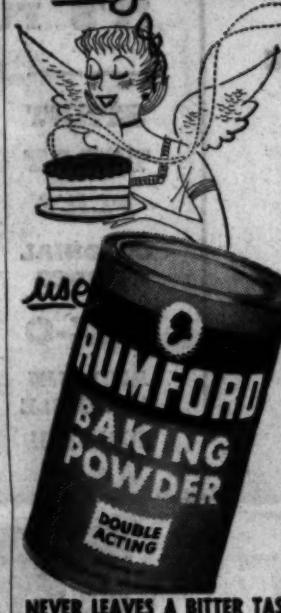

frosting; sprinkle with chopped walnuts or pecans.

APPLE CRISP

8 cups sliced tart cooking apples
1/2 cup water
2 tps. cinnamon
2 tps. salt
1/2 cup butter
2 cups sugar
1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Arrange sliced apples in greased 15 1/2"x10 1/2"x1" pan. Pour water over apples. Combine cinnamon, salt; sprinkle over apples. Cream butter, add sugar, flour; mix thoroughly. Spread mixture over apples. Bake 1 hour at 350 degrees.

NEVER LEAVES A BITTER TASTE

New Style Out In Bean Supper

For an oven dinner, plan making bean pot applesauce. It can be cooked along with the rest of your dinner and is easy to prepare. Just peel, core and quarter enough apples to fill your bean pot.

Arrange in layers sprinkled with brown sugar and cinnamon, dot with butter, and add about 1/2 cup water or cider.

What To Do With Extra Egg Whites

A couple of extra egg whites in the refrigerator? Beat them until frothy with a dash of salt, then gradually beat in four tablespoons of sugar and a tiny bit of vanilla. Continue beating until very stiff and glossy.

Spoon the meringue into the cavities of well drained canned peaches and bake in a slow oven about fifteen minutes or until the topping is lightly touched with brown.

Try Buns Destined To Please

Want a simple recipe for rolls to serve at your next coffee klatch? How about trying Pineapple Sticky Buns? Delicious buns baked with brown sugar and crushed pineapple on top—a sure way to impress all the gals in the neighborhood!

And these rolls are so easy to make—that is, when you use refrigerated biscuits. The biscuits come in an easy zip-opener tube, all sliced and ready to pop into the oven.

To make these famous buns, mix together pineapple, butter, brown sugar and cinnamon and spoon in bottom of muffin cups. Then place a biscuit over mixture in each cup.

Bake only 10 to 12 minutes, and you have the most luscious rolls you've ever made. Serve them warm with steaming hot coffee for the gals, or with cool milk for the youngsters. Both the "young set" and the "old set" will go for these warm, light pineapple buns.

PINEAPPLE STICKY BUNS
¾ cup drained crushed pineapple
¼ cup soft butter
¼ cup brown sugar (packed)
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 can biscuits

Mix pineapple, butter, sugar, and cinnamon. Spoon into 10 greased large muffin cups. Place biscuits over mixture. Bake 10 to 12 minutes at 425 degrees. Let cool 8 minutes, then invert to remove from pan. Makes 10.

Easy Dill Dip Sure To Be Hit

At your next cocktail party, this easy dip is certain to make a hit. To soft cheddar cheese or cheese spread, add enough sherry of the cream type to give the cheese the consistency of sour cream, beating well until very smooth. Then stir in a little ground dill seed, using ¼ teaspoon of the dill seed to a cup of cheese.

Sherried Chops Dress Up Dinner

Brown pork chops (allowing 1 or 2 chops to a serving, depending on size) in heavy skillet. Sprinkle a little salt in the skillet before adding chops to draw out pork fat.

When chops are browned on both sides, add ¼ cup sherry and cover pan, cooking over low heat about 15 minutes. Then add ¼ can tomato paste and 1 cup water. Simmer 15 minutes longer. Salt may be added for taste, if desired, but no other seasoning is needed. Serve accompanied by rice or spaghetti.

Filling in Spongecake

Add brandy flavoring to a fine apricot preserve and use as a filling for spongecake layers; frost with whipped cream and garnish with chocolate sprinkles.

Learn How To Cook Real Chinese Dishes

Send For FREE La Choy RECIPE BOOK

One of the tastiest main dishes for a late-in-the-season porch or garden meal and one that means hearty nourishment at a low cost, is canned spaghetti and meat balls.

The simplicity and speed of preparing them, for two or for a crowd, is a great boon to the lady in the kitchen. Just open the cans, heat the contents thoroughly, and that's all there is to it.

With the spaghetti and meat balls, serve a shimmering gelatin mold salad and crisp bread sticks.

For the dessert, follow the classic Italian menu and serve fruit. Sliced bananas in cranberry juice cocktail or canned pineapple chunks in orange juice are properly light. Ambrosia also makes a delightful dessert. Combine orange sections, grapefruit sections, pineapple and shredded coconut in layers. Chill and serve.

Spanish Hash Adds Flavor

The Spanish add a touch of sublimity to hash, or escovechi, as they call it, by using sherry in the sauce. First chop fine 1 medium onion, 1 or 2 garlic cloves and a green pepper (or 1 canned sweet red pepper) and saute in 2 tablespoons butter or olive oil. Add 2 cups diced leftover beef, 1 cup of finely-diced potatoes and a tablespoon of minced parsley. After vegetables and beef are lightly browned, add 1/2 cup each of tomato juice water and sherry. Season to taste with salt and pepper, simmer half an hour. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Quick and Easy Way To Make Pan Gravy

To make pan gravy, remove most of the fat from the roasting pan and add a little water. Bring to a boil, scraping up the browned residue on the bottom of the pan with a wooden spoon. Season to taste and strain gravy before serving.

WHITE POTATO SALAD
Roquefort Cheese Dressing

Try Cheese To Up-Lift Potato Salad

The distinctive flavor of Roquefort cheese is enhanced when used as a dressing over long white potato salad.

LONG WHITE POTATO SALAD
4 or 5 potatoes
2 green onions, chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. black pepper
1/4 cup wine vinegar or dry white wine
6 tblsp. salad oil
1/2 lb. Roquefort cheese
3 tblsp. light cream
1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 hard-boiled eggs, sliced
Pickle slices

Cook the potatoes in boiling salted water till tender. Peel and dice; combine with onions, celery, salt, pepper, vinegar (or dry white wine) and oil. Allow flavor to mellow several hours. Mash the Roquefort cheese with cream; add to mayonnaise. Combine with potatoes and chill thoroughly. When ready to serve, garnish with sliced eggs and pickle slices.

Add Raisins To Brownies For a Treat

CHOCOLATE RAISIN BROWNIES

3/4 cup light or dark raisins
2 (1-oz.) squares unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
2 eggs
3/4 cup sifted all-purpose flour

Rinse and drain raisins. Cut chocolate fine and combine with butter. Melt over hot water. Remove from heat and stir in sugar, salt, vanilla and well-beaten eggs. Fold in flour and raisins.
